WIMAN ON RECIPROCITY.

He Sees a Glorious Opportunity in the Near Future.

Woonsocket, R. I., Feb. 18.—Erastus Wiman, of New York, addressed the Business Men's association here this evening. He said in part that the complete collapse of the recent negotiations respecting Canadian reciprocity again enforced the lesson that so long as diplomacy was controlled by Great Britain on the one hand, and dictated by Canadian manufacturers on the other, there would be no free market towards the north for American goods.

The tory party in control in Canada owed its power to the manufacturers of that country, many of whom, with timidity born of excessive protection, failed to see the great advantages which an open market in the United States would afford.

Standing with these are the ultra-loyalists, who oppose the discrimination against the goods of Great Britain which the free admission of American manufactures would imply.

If diplomacy must continuously fail to obliterate the barrier that now divides the English-speaking people on this continent, legislation can easily accomplish their practical union.

If the democrats were in earnest in their desire to unshackle trade, and especially to reduce the cost of living, a magnificent opportunity is now opened up for them.

A resolution offering unrestricted trade with Canada by congress, and the appointment of a commission to treat with parliamentary representatives for the obliteration of the customs line between the two countries could not be resisted by any parliament in Canada without the certainty of its being repudiated by the people.

Legislation originating in the needs and wants of the people of this continent was the one thing essential for a practical union, as against diplomacy originating in Great Britain, and shaped by men whose only desire was to stand well with the authorities in another world, 3,000 miles away.

Railway Traffic Blocked and Business at a Standstill.

Vienna, Feb. 18.—Terrible snow storms are raging in Galicia, a province of Austro-Hungary, in Cisleithania, and comprising the greater part of Austrian Poland. The snow is piled up in immense drifts, and traffic on the various railway lines is almost wholly suspended. The wagon roads are also badly blockaded by the heavy fall of snow, and the routes from Innsbruck, the capital city of the Tyrol, are completely obliterated, shutting off almost all communication with the place.

SHOT IN THE BACK.

Gallatin, Feb. 18.—William Carter, eldest son of John T. Carter, a well-known farmer and blooded-horse dealer, was shot and killed about 4 o'clock last evening by Edward B. Turpin, a resident of the place. Turpin called Carter a vile name, when Carter walked toward him. As he got within a few yards of Turpin the latter fired at him, it is said, through his overcoat pocket, where he had his revolver concealed, the ball plowing into the pavement.

Carter turned to escape, when Turpin fired into his back, and as Carter ran shot him again in the back.

How United States Senators Should be Elected.

Interesting Discussion in the Upper House

By the Man Sent There by the People.

Our Constitution and Its Needed Changes.

Splendid Address Delivered to Congress To-Day by Senator John M. Palmer, of Illinois—The Voice of the Voter the Law of the Land.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Mr. Palmer said, in calling the attention this morning of the senate and the country to the subject of an alteration of the constitution of the United States, which shall provide for the election of senators in congress by a direct vote of the people of the several states, that he only obeyed the instruction given him in the most impressive manner by the people of the state of Illinois.

The constitutional mode of electing senators by the legislature of the states was no longer satisfactory to the American people.

It was not a sufficient answer to the popular dissatisfaction to say that it is the method provided by the constitution. Tracing the history of the adoption of the constitution, he pointed out that the instrument we now so revere was not the fragment prepared by the patriots and statesmen who composed the convention of which Washington was president, but the complete instrument as perfected by ten most important amendments submitted to the states for their approval by the first congress that assembled under its provisions.

He regarded the provision in the constitution for its own amendment by peaceable, orderly methods, was one of the happiest conceptions of profound statesmanship, and that it was placed in the constitution justifies the belief that even the necessity for a new system of government would not have been sufficient to secure the acceptance of the constitution by the requisite number of states, if it had not been for the confident expectation entertained by many that it would thereafter be improved by essential amendments.

It is manifest that there prevailed in the convention which framed the constitution the most profound distrust of popular elections.

It was conceded, indeed, that an election of one branch at least, of the proposed legislature by the people immediately was a clear principle of free government. Mr. Gerry, whose name is connected in modern political life with a practice which is invariably denounced by minorities, conceded that much. He said "it was necessary that the people should appoint one branch of the government in order to inspire them with confidence," but he wished the "other to be so modified as to secure a just preference of merit."

But it is probable that the general purpose of the convention in the organization of the senate, and in the mode of electing senators was expressed by Mr. Dickinson, who said he wished "the senate to consist of the most distinguished characters, distinguished for their rank in life and their weight of property, and bearing as strong a likeness to the English house of lords as possible," and he thought such characters more likely to be selected by the state legislature than by any other mode."

Considerations like these largely influenced the conveniton to confide the election of senators to the legislatures of the states.

Another of the objects intended to be accomplished by confiding the election of senators to state legislatures was that of protecting the commercial and moneyed interests. It was argued in the convention "that the commercial and moneyed interests would be more secure in the hands of the state legislatures than of the people at large. The former have more sense of character and will be restrained by that from injustice."

And then, to illustrate their incapacity, it was added, "the people are for paper money when the legislatures are against it." In Massachusetts the county conventions had declared a wish for a depreciating paper that would sink itself.

None of the reasons which led the framers of the constitution to deprive the people of the direct control of the executive department and of the senate now exist.

Specific proof of the incapacity of the legislature to exercise electoral functions, and of the capacity of the people to do so, will be found on examination of the revised and amended constitutions of the older states, and of the new states modeled after them.

If the amendment to the constitution which he proposed should be adopted, members of the senate would be chosen by the direct vote of the people, and the senate would be, what it never had been, the popular branch of the congress of the United States.

In conclusion Mr. Palmer said:

"In 1787 it was believed by many that the security of property would be endangered by the direct participation of the people in the election of senators; now the rights and liberty of the people are threatened by the overwhelming and all-pervading influence of property.

"It is not necessary that I should assail or denounce those who control the enormous aggregates of either fixed or speculative property; it is enough to point to the irresistible logic of existing conditions, the property, or, to use more expressive words, the wealth invested in commerce, in manufactures, in the railways, the forests, the mines, and in the myriad forms of organized activity demands legislation for its protection or its benefit, and its political power, whether employed in the congress of the United States, or in the state legislature, rarely fails to win success.

"Organized as it is, it is so related that it can direct its influence to the attainment of any desirable end.

"Mr. President, the property to which I have alluded has now nothing to fear from the aggressive action of the people, of from their direct influence upon the government.

"All they can gain by the amendment to the constitution I have proposed, will be enlarged powers of self-defense.

"Senators hereafter to be elected by the people, by their direct votes, will be their true and exact representatives and will refend their homes and their property from unequal and excessive burdens.

"They will dignify the states, for the people are the states.

"They will recognize their responsibility to the people who elect them and they will find their reward in the approval of their fellow citizens whom they have faithfully served."

LOUISIANA REPUBLICANS.

They Place a Full Ticket in the Field.

The McKinley Bill Recognized as a Proud Achievement of the Republican Party.

New Orleans, Feb. 17.—The state convention of the Warmouth faction in the republican party of Louisiana was called to order shortly after noon yesterday at Odd Fellows' hall, by Gen. A. S. Badger, of the state committee.

Only those who wore blue badges were allowed inside of the railing. The sergeant-at-arms and his assistants rigidly excluded those who they believed to be opponents of Gov. Warmouth and his faction. There was a large crowd of delegates, both black and white present, and the main portion of the hall was filled.

The platform and resolutions presented by the committee were adopted. They reaffirm their faith in the principles and policy of the republican party; recognize with satisfaction the proud achievements of the party in the last four years, including the adoption of the McKinley bill, thereby securing to American industries the fullest protection to labor and capital; condem the practices of the democratic state administration whereby the republican vote is almost totally suppressed; demand fair and honest elections; congratulate the people of the state on the overthrow of the Louisiana lottery, and credit the republican party with the good work; favor public education and condemn the slaughter of the Italians at the Parish prison.

In conclusion it says:

"Resolved: That the republicans of Louisiana recognize in that of President Harrison a most patriotic, careful and painstaking administration. Under his wise council and steady hand the republican party has retained the confidence of the business interests of the country, has sought the fullest protection to American rights throughout the world, and assured the country for many years to come peace and prosperity.

The following nominations were made:

For governor—John E. Freaux of Point Coupe.

Lieutenant-governor—James C. Weaks of Ouchila.

Attorney gentral—James M. Edwards of Avevelles.

Auditor—Stephen R. Gay of Iberia.

Treasurer Col. James Lewis of New Orleans.

Secretary of state—John E. Starrs of New Orleans.

Superintendent of education—Edward W. Barnett of Rapides.

The two nominees from New Orleans are the only colored men on the ticket.

QUAY IS A JONAH.

Keystone Republican Trying to Oust Him.

They Claim That His Disappearance is Positively Necessary to Success at the Coming Election.

Philadelphia, Feb. 18.—An address to the republican voters of Pennsylvania will be issued by the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Republican association, an organization which has been perfecting its plans for several months past, and the object of which is to prevent M. S. Quay's re-election to the United States senate and to secure the choice of some able and loyal republican as his successor.

The movement, it is said, is entirely separate and distinct from that which was ineffectually launched against Mr. Quay last fall, and proceeds from prominent business, professional, and workingmen who have uniformly supported the republican party, but have taken no active part in politics.

The gist of the address is contained in the following extract: "Believing that the best interests of the republican party demand the retirement of M. S. Quay from the United States senate at the expiration of his present term, and that he should be succeeded by a loyal republican, possessed of the qualities necessary to the proper fulfillment of the duties of that high and responsible position, we hereby appeal to you for your support in our effort to accomplish this result."

JEWS RETURNING HOME.

They Cannot Get Rich Fast Enough.

Many of Them Came Over to Get a Crack at the Hirsch Fund and Got Fooled.

New York, Feb. 18.—Many Russian Jews are applying daily at the office of the Russian consul general in this city, to be sent back to Russia.

They are unable to make a living in the United States and want to get back to their homes and friends.

The Russian vice consul, C. G. Petersen, said to-day that the talk about these people being expelled from Russia was all nonsense.

"The Jews in Russia," he said, "are restricted to certain provinces, and in none of these provinces does a famine exist. It is not the Hebrews who are suffering from famine, but the great mass of the Russian peasantry."

Mr. Peterson thought the secret of the Jewish exodus to this country was that they had an idea they would get money from the Hirsch fund. He said the consulate had no money with which to send them back.

TWENTY MILES OF ICE

Banked Up in One of the Pennsylvania Rivers,

Threatening Great Damage to Valley Property.

It is the Worst Ice Gorge Seen in the Allegheny Valley Since the Year 1874.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 18.—The ice gorge at Parker City is still intact and the greatest alarm prevails. There are a series of gorges between Brady's Bend and a short distance above Parker.

The chief danger lies in the strength of the Parker gorge and the weakness of the one above. It is feared that the upper gorge will break and the ice will pile against the Parker gorge without breaking it. The result would be that a dam would be formed similar to the one a few years ago at Brady, where the river rose six feet in seven minutes. The gorges are frozen almost solid and it would require much work to break them. The citizens of Parker have tried in vain to force a passage through the gorge and were working on it yesterday morning: so far the efforts to blow it up with dynamite have been fruitless.

Superintendent Rice, of the river division of the Allegheny Valley railroad, says: "There is no exaggeration whatever in regard to the situation at Parker. The people there are in even more danger than has been reported, and that city, as well as Brady, is in a bad predicament."

Warm weather and a few hours rain at the headwaters of the Clarion would do an amount of damage that would be hard to estimate.

Superintendent Price says it is the worst ice gorge that he has seen in the Allegheny river since 1874. The river bed is apparently packed with solid layers of ice for nearly 20 miles. The head of the gorge is at Goose bar, opposite Pine Run, about a mile above Phillipston. Here the ice is piled 19 feet high and extends up the river for eight miles to Hill View Bend. It is almost solid the entire distance, and in some places is piled up several feet above the main body of the gorge.

From Hill View Bend north there is an open channel for about a mile. Here is another gorge which extends to the mouth of the Clarion river above Parker. Although the ice is piled up over the river banks and to the tops of the bridge piers, the water is much lower. There is a possibility that the gorge will form such a mass as to shut off the water channel altogether. If it does Parker and other towns along the river will be submerged. It would not take such a volume of water very long to rise to the height of the gorge.

Engineer Arras, of the Allegheny river improvements, stated to-day that he would at once proceed to Parker to investigate the gorge and see what could be done.

DROPPED DEAD.

Postmaster Ward Meets His End While On Duty.

Norwalk, O., Feb. 18.—(Special)—Chas. Ward, postmaster at Shiloh, Richland county, while closing his office last night, was stricken suddenly with apoplexy and died within an hour after being taken home.

Mr. Ward was a member of the late First Ohio light artillery, and was well known in this county, having been a resident of North Fairfield. He was connected with the North Fairfield Plow company.

REVERSED HIS DECISION.

Steubenville, Feb. 18.—Judge Pearce reversed his decision in regard to local option, rendered last Friday. At that time he sustained a lawyer who attacked the validity of the record of a township clerk, because it was not complete, not showing preliminary proceedings the same as in election of township officers, only the result of the election being recorded, which he deemed not sufficient. Decision was of interest, as it threatened to overthrow the result of local option election.

HEAP BIG SQUAW.

Winnepeg, Man., Feb. 18.—There died at Dog Lake reservation, near Lake Manitoba, on the 2nd inst. the largest woman in the world. She was a squaw and was married to a buck named Chippewa. She weighed 700 pounds and measured 34 inches around the arm. It took a coffin seven feet long and five feet wide to hold her remains.

SIR GEORGE CAMPBELL DEAD

London, Feb. 18.—A dispatch from Cairo announces the death at that place of Sir George Campbell, K. C. S. I., D. C. L., member of parliament for Kirkcaldy. He has sat for Kirkcaldy since April, 1875. In politics he was a liberal in favor of home rule.

Stole an Overcoat.

Charles Griffith was caught in the act of stealing an overcoat from the cloak room at the Hotel Marvin. The coat belonged to Fred Stroub, the night clerk. He was turned over to the police.

KIDNAPED BY TRAMPS.

Eatontown, N. J., Feb. 18.—A 7-year old boy, named Walcott, of a well-to-do family on the outskirts of the town, was kidnaped yesterday by tramps while skating on a pond some distance from home.

A large number of farmers and other residents of the vicinity have turned out and are aiding in the search for the stolen boy.

HE WAS TAKEN IN.

A Man in Need of Ten Dollars Knows How to Get It.

Orwell, O., Feb. 18.—On January 11 a man, giving the name of C. B. Arnold, and claiming to be the agent of Armstrong & Co., of Baltimore, dealers in ladies' underwear and furnishing goods, came to this place and said he wanted to establish an agency to sell the above goods on commission.

He entered into an agreement with one of our citizens, collecting $10 in advance, and agreeing to furnish the goods within twenty days

After the time had expired the "agent" wrote to the police department of Baltimore and found out that there was no company by that name doing business in that line of goods, and that said C. B. Arnold was an imposter.

MORE WRECKS.

London, Feb. 18.—The vessel wrecked off Roundstone, on the Galway coast, is not the Cavour, as first supposed. She is a brig, name unknown.

A bark, the Aberolemo, has gone ashore in the straits of Dover and lies in a position dangerous to shipping.

WILL MOVE TO POSTPONE

A Compromise on the Silver Question.

It Will be Discussed at the Next Session.

Important Action by the House Democrats Whereby the Tariff Question Will Receive Much Needed Attention.

Washington, Feb. 18.—A new and importment development in the silver situation came to the surface yesterday, and it may solve the problem that at present is causing considerable anxiety in the democratic camp.

It is known that the committee on rules will report a resolution setting apart a certain day for the consideration of the Bland bill, Speaker Crisp having given assurances to the silver men yesterday that such action would be taken when Representative Catchings returned from Boston.

When this resolution is submitted to the house, Representative Bynum will move to amend it by substituting some day next session.

He is a friend of silver, but does not believe that the demand for free coinage is sufficiently pressing now to warrant hazarding a division in the party.

There is general opinion among the democrats who want to see the tariff issue kept paramount until after the presidential election, that such a resolution can be passed by the combined votes of the democratic and republican opponents of silver in conjunction with the votes of those democrats who believe that postponement is the proper policy.

At any rate the effort is to be made.

In the meantime, the proposed joint caucus is off, and no action is likely to be taken on the silver bill in the house for some time. Assurances have been given the anti-silver men that they will be afforded sufficient time to call the caucus before the consideration of the measure is begun.

A poll of the senate is said to have been made, with the showing that a free silver bill cannot pass that body. The anti-silver men however are not willing to let the bill through the house without a struggle simply on the supposition that it will meet defeat in the senate.

"LIBELOUS, CRUEL, BRUTISH"

Such is the Way Dr. Tupper Properly Characterizes

The Mean Assault of the Toledo Blade—The Murderer Malloy Was Discharged Before Superintendent Tupper's Appointment.

On Tuesday the Blade contained the following brutal editorial attack upon Dr. Tupper, superintendent of the Toledo asylum:

Superintendent Tupper, of the Toledo insane asylum, claims to be making a great record on "curing" insane people. The trouble seems to be that most of the results go back to him and refuse to stay cured. The double tragedy which occurred in this city a few days ago, by which John Malloy killed his wife and then himself, is a result of one of Dr. Tupper's "cures." Malloy, it seems, had been let out as "cured," but only to kill his wife and then himself.

There has been much tooting of brass horns, and blowing of brazen trumpets, on the part of Dr. Tupper about his cures, but the evidence of the probate judges of the counties will show that the "cures" have a good deal of the quack about them.

It is a very nice thing for this asylum district to have so great and learned a superintendent as is Dr. Tupper; one who can take a maniac and cure him in a few days, so that he will be mild of temper and sweet in disposition, and never do more than to murder his wife and then to save cost of a trial, judiciously kill himself. Dr. Tupper may hope to deceive the public this way, but murder will show him up as he is.

It is doubtful if a Toledo newspaper ever printed a more vindictive article than the above. That the writer was densely ignorant of the Malloy case is proven by the following center shot from Superintendent Tupper:

Toledo Asylum for Insane,
February 18, 1892.

Editor Toledo Bee:

Dear Sir—For the relief, satisfaction, and comfort of the many minds and hearts who have friends and loved ones in this asylum for treatment, and to counteract and neutralize as far as possible the injury, distress, anxiety and fear caused by the Toledo Blade's libelous, cruel, brutish and ignorant editorial publication of Tuesday evening under the caption of "Cures Insane People," I desire a small space in your paper to state a few facts as shown by records kept by officials here before my appointment, and who will possibly be regarded fully as trustworthy as the rum pulverizing sheet. John Malloy, whose wife's murder I am constructively charged as guilty of before the fact, was admitted into this asylum March 16, 1891, discharged April 28, 1891. I came to the asylum as its superintendent May 12, 1891, and assumed control May 19, 1891. I had never seen nor heard of this man Malloy until I read the sad account of his murder and suicide in the daily papers. Now I wish to submit to the public the question of fairness, honesty and intelligence of the editor, who trying donkey-like to serve he knows not what, disgraces the position of man, gentleman and manager of a pretended news journal. So sorrowfully unreliable becomes such efforts to be thought enterprising that respectable readers only pity the pitiable nuisance endeavoring to counterfeit newspaper proficiency. I am,

Very respectfully,
C. E. TUPPER.

STOPPING UP THE LEAKS

Representative Wyke on an Income Tax.

The Ways and Means Committee Listens to an Entertaining Discussion on the Revenues.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The committee on ways and means devoted its attention yesterday to the principle of an income tax as a means of raising revenue in the event that the reduction of the tariff should ever bring the revenues of the country below the legitimate expenses of the government.

A few days ago Representative Wyke, of Illinois, introduced a series of resolutions indorsing the income tax theory and recommending legislation in that direction by the Fifty-second congress.

These resolutions were referred to the committee on ways and means, and that committee accorded Mr. Wyke a hearing in advocacy of his resolutions.

In his argument Mr. Wyke urged the committee to consider seriously and propose a plan to supplement any reduction of revenue that might follow a reduction of tariff duties to an extent that might threaten a depletion of the treasury.

Although a democrat, Mr. Wyke maintained that the country would not consider the efforts of the committee as at all serious to reduce tariff taxes unless it at the same time sought some other source of revenue to supplement any loss from the enlargement of the free list and reduction of tariff duties.

The country does not desire such a revenue reform as will injuriously affect the public credit or threaten a depletion of the treasury. He said it had been charged on the floor of the house, and the people believe that the party in power has nearly bankrupted the treasury and from whatever cause such disastrous results may have been brought about, it is the duty of the committee to see that sufficient revenue is raised to meet the obligations of the government.

He feared that any reductions of appropriations or retrenchments in expenditures that this congress can possibly effect will not leave the treasury in the receipts of sufficient revenue to meet the demands upon it.

Mr. Wyke desired, however, to impress upon the committee the importance of not permitting the necessities of the treasury to abate in the least particular their efforts to reduce the tariff duties, and in order to remove the hindrance to that end he earnestly urged the adoption of the graduated income tax with the exemptions to the extent of $5,000.

The the suggestion of a member that the income tax was not an equal tax, Mr. Wyke said the large exemption proposed by his resolutions was for the purpose of equalizing the burdens of taxation by making the gigantic fortunes, and the excessive and unnatural accumulations of the country bear a portion of it.

In the states where the state and local taxes are raised for the most part by taxes on real and personal property, the middle and poorer classes whose possessions are all in sight, contribute the bulk of the revenue, while the concentrated wealth of the millionaire, of rich corporations and combines is relatively but little taxed.

The country is not willing, Mr. Wyke continued, to go back to the plan of raising the necessary revenue of the government by what is called a purely revenue tariff. He wanted no step backward in the march that leads to free trade. Any tariff duty whatever, whether the object be protection or otherwise, tends to cripple the power and opportunity of the manufacturer to produce articles of manufacture so cheaply as those made under free trade.

M. Wyke said that in 1886 the income tax in this country had produced its greatest amount of revenue, being almost $73,000,000, and that more than one-half of that amount arose from incomes in excess of $5,000, the limit of the exemptions proposed by his resolutions.

THE MENNONITES MUST GO.

Their Aversion to War Makes Them Objectionable.

Asiatic Russia Will Dump Thousands of People Upon Our Shores the Coming Summer.

Odessa, Feb. 18.—The proposed emigration to America this spring of the German Mennonites settled near Tashkend, in Asiatic Russia, is the result of the new policy adopted by the Russian government in requiring the Mennonites to do military service the same as other subjects of the czar.

This is against the Mennonite creed, the people of that sect being equally averse to lawsuits and to war.

For over one hundred years their prejudices have been respected, and they have been regarded as desirable residents of the empire, on account of their skill, industry and law-abiding character.

It is now desired, however, to get rid of all Germans, no matter how remote their descent, who are not entirely amalgamated with the Russian population. Hence the measures that are about to deprive Russia of its Mennonite population.

The Acknowledged Leader of the American Turf Has Passed Under the Wire.

He was the principal owner of Monmouth park and the magnificent new race course at that place, one of the most complete and best appointed in the world, was conceived and built by him. It cost over $2,000,000.

During the last two months Mr. Withers has been vigorously fighting the management of the Guttenburg race course.

The ambition of his life was to see Monmouth park reopened to the public.

About 8:30 fire was discovered in the old Metropolitan car barn on the corner of Orchard street and Broadway and an alarm was turned in. The building was an old frame and was totally destroyed, but the fire was prevented from spreading. The loss will be about $1,000.

A CLOSE CALL

For a Painter Whose Scaffold Fell From Under Him.

Mr. Frank P. Flowers, the sign painter, had a narrow escape from death yesterday afternoon and only his cool head saved him.

He was working on a sign on H. D. Wood's grocery, Superior street, and was outside of the third story on a swinging scaffold hung from the top of the building.

Suddenly he noticed one of the supporting ropes giving way and he jumped to the other side of the scaffold and grasped the rope on that side just as the frail platform fell to the street below and left him dangling in the air.

He then came down this rope hand over hand to the ground, unhurt, but somewhat nervous.

A LIVELY SPRING

In Building Circles, So Says Architect Bacon.

Architect N. B. Bacon said this morning: "There promises to be unusual activity in building circles this spring.

"Architects have their hands full now preparing plans, specifications, and estimating probable costs, and if one-half of the projects go through it will be a lively season for all concerned.

"Of late years the building of residences has greatly exceeded that of business structures, but this year things will be turned about, as an unusually large number of business buildings will go up, and that's what we want to keep pace with the growth of the resident portion of the city."

FOR ASSAULT.

Assistant Weather Observer Lysight Arraigned in Police Court.

He pleaded not guilty and is represented by Attorney Reno, who raised the question of the jurisdiction.

The assault occurred on government property and Mr. Reno claimed that the police court had nothing to do with the matter.

In order that the attorneys may present authorities on this question, the case was continued until this afternoon, when it will be tried.

The audience was large and appreciative, and the program arranged was an excellent one.

The church will be benefited from a financial standpoint by the proceeds of the entertainment.

TOLEDO'S LATCH STRING.

How It Hung Out on the Occasion of the Press League Visit.

Mr. W. V. Alexander, writing for the Boston Transcript on the recent Press club trip, has the following reference to the hours spent in Toledo. Mr. Alexander will be remembered as the gentleman who responded to the words of welcome at the Produce Exchange:

Before the Press league reached home stops were made at St. Louis, Toledo, Detroit and Niagara. In St. Louis, the Chamber of Commerce held a reception, took the visitors on a long drive and finally gave a banquet at the fair grounds of the Jockey club, where there is a club house so spacious, so well planned and tastefully furnished that everybody was charmed. At Toledo the cordiality shown was equal to that met in the far West. The program here included a drive, a reception at the Merchants' Exchange and luncheon at the house of the Toledo club—an elegant repast. As soon as the party had reached the city there were distributed badges bearing the suggestive words, "Toledo's latch-string," and it certainly seemed as if every latch-string in that hospitable thrifty city were out.

A LEGAL TANGLE.

Law Suit Filed Over the Sale of a Lot—Many Complications.

In common pleas court to-day I. H. Detwiler & Co. filed suit against William Gates, Joseph M. Spencer and Ernest L. Gates to recover $500 commission for negotiating the purchase of the northeasterly 60 feet of lot number 447 Port Lawrence division.

The plaintiff alleges that the purchase was made and conveyance transferred from Mary Dodd to William Gates, that Mary Dodd refused to pay commission and that William Gates entered into an agreement to allow the plaintiff, as their compensation, one-half of all the money the northeasterly 50 feet of the lot sold for above 4,416.60; that they understood the defendant was acting in his own behalf and not as an agent of any one.

The plaintiffs claim that Joseph M. Spencer sold the lot to Ernest Gates for $1,650, who sold ten feet to Charles Gates, and on May 7, 1888, the lot was sold to the trustees of the public library for $1,650, and that a fair proportionate value of the piece of the northeasterly 50 feet of lot 447 thus disposed of is $1,000.

A number of questions are propounded by the petition which the plaintiff prays that the court will require Wm. Gates to come into court and answer.

A BRILLIANT RECEPTION

The floral decorations were beautiful, consisting of lilies and palms in the front parlor, hyacinths in the back parlor and in the dining room carnations, red roses and palms. The effect was very pretty.

ANTI-ALCOHOL,

The latest, cheapest and best preparation for destroying the desire for alcoholic drinks was not long since discovered by a well-known Toledo man. This preparation has been found effective to an astonishing degree, placing the patient beyond the danger line within twenty-four hours after beginning treatment. It seems to be nature's specific for this dreaded mania for intoxicants. No sanitarium need be visited. No interference with regular business. No publicity. No great expense, but a permanent cure established in from seven to twenty-one days. Such is the statement made to the Bee. Anything of so much importance to the public at large, and to so large a number of private individuals should at once be investigated, and if found to be as great a boon to a long suffering humanity as is claimed for it, no time should be lost in placing it within the reach of all who are suffering from intemperate habits. The Bee will vouch for the honesty, sincerity and truthfulness of the gentleman who gave it this information. For further particulars see ad. in want columns.

Winter Cloaks are still going at clearing prices.

THE SUNDAY SHAVING CASE

Much Interest in the Trial in Police Court.

Lawyers Get Into a War of Words, and it is Interesting for the Usual Number of Spectators.

George W. Speyer, the Fifth ward barber, who was arrested for keeping open on Sunday, was tried in police court this morning.

Attorney L. G. Richardson conducted the prosecution and Byron Ritchie the defense.

The case was marked for the fiery work of the attorneys and on several occasions the court was obliged to call them down.

The evidence for the prosecution consisted of the testimony of Louis Meyer, who stated that he went to Speyer's place on Sunday, February 7, and told Speyer that he wanted his hair combed. He had no beard, but Speyer lathered his face and used a razor on it.

On cross-examination Meyer said that he had been sent to Speyer's place by several members of the Barbers' union and boasted of how he had worked "a game" to catch the old man.

No evidence was presented for the defense, but Mr. Ritchie, in his argument, claimed a conspiracy and besides argued that the defendant could not have shaved the man when he had no beard.

Judge Sala reserved his decision and will pronounce judgment at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

TO SELL THE CANAL.

Some Points on This Important Project.

Councilman Huberich's Plan to Sell the Canal Bed and Build Bridges.

The project, which has previously been mentioned, of abandoning the canal from Maumee to Toledo, is being vigorously pushed by Alderman Huberich, who originated the plan, and Councilman Frank Coleman.

"We are now waiting until the necessary papers have been prepared for the legislature," said Mr. Huberich, "when we will ask the council and the board of trade to indorse the project and recommend to the legislature the abandonment of the Miami and Erie canal from Maumee to Toledo.

"This will not be the least detriment to the canal trade, as the boats can be locked into the river at Maumee, and come to the city in shorter time than through the present canal with its many locks. On the other hand the canal is a nuisance in the city and a cause of great expense which could be stopped.

"If the plan is adopted, and I think it will be, the property now occupied by the canal can be sold and the city will get some funds from the proceeds of Toledo's share of the property that will be a great help in our present straitened circumstances.

"I am in favor of the city selling out as soon as the water shall be drained from the canal and then applying this money to the building of new bridges over Swan creek at Perry street, South street, St. Clair street, Western avenue and Lenk street.

"These bridges are old and unfit for use and this would give the city money with which to erect fine bridges."

SCIENTIFIC HORSE SHOEING.

The Ketcham Farm Shoeing Forge on St. Clair street, nearly opposite Trinity church, is now open for business, in charge of Mr. Geo. Blessing, a thoroughly scientific shoer, formerly with W. C. Frances, and later with Jack Splan.

Shoeing of coach and track horses will be a leading feature, while special attention will be given to scientific shoeing to cure defects of the feet occasioned from improper shoeing and other causes.

New things in all departments are now opening. NEUHAUSEL BROS.

AUTOMATIC GAMBLING.

The coin-in-the-orifice man is still hard at it. Up to date he has produced about one hundred of these penny-catching devices, and among the recent ones are some admirable pieces of mechanism. His latest is a very clever affair on the automatic order, and is designed to attract those gentlemen who like to toy with fickle fortune in a homoeopathic way.

Beneath a glass semi-globe is seated the life-size figure of a monkey with an unusually open countenance. The beast is gotten up in an elaborate silk and satin costume and is an ideal simian in every particular.

In one hand he holds a small bowl of gutta percha and in the other a dice-box.

When any one accepts the invitation upon the outside of the case to deposit a copper in the slot the monkey's head begins to wobble from side to side in a highly derisive manner. Suddenly he begins to shake the dice-box and with a sudden turn of his mechanical wrist throws five poker dice into the gutta percha bowl. They remain there long enough to allow the player outside to get a satisfactory view of them, and then the box drops to the edge of the bowl, the dice are turned into it, and the monkey is ready for another throw.

As a money-maker this little machine surpasses its predecessors with ease and is irresistibly attractive to the lounger who has time and a pocketful of silver to spend.

HANDY TO HAVE.

An ingenious little table which adds greatly to the comfort and convenience of guests at receptions and parties has recently been devised by a Chicago caterer. When folded it fits snugly into a banjo box. When set up for use it takes up no appreciable room, as it consists of a metal standard that can be placed between two chairs and two rings that need not be put down until they are needed. Then one of them folds over to the right and the other to the left. On these rings are placed light trays, on which cups of tea or chocolate and plates of dainties can be placed while the guests partake of their refreshments. The guest will be saved from fear of spilling the contents of her cup on a costly gown and also be relieved of the weariness of having to hold a plate and cup in the hand while chatting with her neighbor. The table can be adjusted to any height. It can also be easily converted into a card table. A course dinner can be served upon it as well as light refreshments. Those who have seen it are enthusiastic over it. Just now it is meeting with large favor in the east, where it is being introduced.—Chicago Times.

ANOTHER TOLEDO INDUSTRY.

Workmen are engaged in fitting up the store room at 611 St. Clair street and putting it in shape for the manufacture of Law's new patent steel hod, which will be made up here in large quantities. The firm is composed of R. and R. J. Law, both well known in the city. They already have an extensive trade in these implements in Chicago, Denver, Cleveland, Bay City, Pittsburg and other cities. The capacity of the new factory will be over 100 hods per day.

A FALL IN SILVER.

C. G. Ricker, chief clerk of the St. Louis sub-treasury; B. C. Farrar, the receiving teller, and E. M. Miller, the watchman of the vault, were standing in a group just inside the ponderous doors and beside several immense rows of silver dollars which were piled to the ceiling of the vaults in canvas bags, containing each $1,000 and weighing about sixty pounds.

Suddenly Mr. Ricker noticed a slight bulging movement of the center of the outside row of heavy sacks, and realizing in a second what was about to occur, he sprang to the opposite side of the vault, at the same time shoving his companions away from the falling mass of silver. Mr. Farrar fell in one corner out of harm's way, while Mr. Miller was fortunate enough to lodge in the passage room between the smaller vaults, which is at the farther end of the silver room. Mr. Ricker's action was none too early, for in the twinkling of an eye nearly 60,000 pounds of silver was piled four feet deep on the spot where they had been standing.

As it was several of the bags struck him on the legs and bruised his feet. The truck used to wheel the heavy sacks about, which was standing in the middle of the vault, was smashed. Nearly $1,000,000 was scattered promiscuously around the steel room, and it was by the merest chance that none of the men were killed. In consequence of the accident a large amount of the silver coin will be moved to the upper vaults.—Washington Post.

USEFUL HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

If one has a suitable place for the purpose, the washing of blankets may become an easy matter, says the Ladies' Home Journal. In an open space, have a line tightly stretched out of doors. To this fasten the upper edge of the blanket. Have strips of cotton sewed to the bottom at intervals tie these to pegs, which drive well into the ground. Now turn on the hose. Cold water, of course, and plenty of it. Drench the blankets well on both sides. If much soiled, rub spots with soap and drench again. The force of the stream will do more than wringing. After the artcile is quite clean leave it to dry; never mind if it does rain; if the work has been thorough it will not streak, but be all the better for it. When the sun has completed the task, you will possess blankets as white, soft, and unshrunken as new, and the nap will not be destroyed.

Said bonds shall be of the denomination of One Thousand Dollars and be dated March 1, 1892, to run for a period of 10 years from date, and be made payable at the Importers' and Traders' National Bank, in the city of New York, with interest at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually at the same place, to be evidenced by proper coupons to be attached to said bonds.

No proposal will be accepted for less than par and accrued interest from date of said bonds to date of delivery at Toledo.

The said bonds will be sold at not less than par and accrued interest, to the highest bidder.

Bidders will be required to state the gross amount they will pay for the bonds besides the accrued interest to date of delivery at Toledo, Ohio. They will also be required to deposit with each bid an amount of money or a certified check on some responsible bank equal to at least five (5) per centum of the par value of the bonds, so bid for, as a guarantee of good faith, and that the bid so made (if successful) will be fulfilled in accordance with the terms thereof, and the requirements of the law and ordinances. And no bid will be received if not accompanied by money or check aforesaid.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

Choosing Between Attractions.

Barnum's circus had just struck a town in Vermont. Aunt Polly had never seen the elephant, in any sense of the word, and had been telling for weeks how she "did just long to go to the show." When the proper morning came Aunt Polly's married son, Josh, told her to be ready at 1 p. m. and they'd take in the show. "Well, now," exclaimed Aunt Polly, hesitatingly, "I don't know about that. I want to see the show awful bad, but, you see, Deacon Perkins' funeral comes off to-day, and I don't know which I'd enjoy the most. There'll be lots of folks there, and besides I may live till Barnum comes again, but this is the only funeral Deacon Perkins will ever give. I guess, Josh, I'll have a better time at the funeral than at the circus." And Aunt Polly went to the funeral.—Boston Sunday Globe.

How He Apologized.

A lady passenger much annoyed the luggage steward by having her luggage got ready for being put ashore at various places of call. At each place the passenger seemed to alter her mind and to form the desire of going on farther. At last she said she would go on to Inverness. Then the luggage steward said:

"Oh! go to the devil!"

The lady, in a high state of indignation, reported the man to the captain. That gentleman told the steward he must find out the lady and apologize to her. The steward consented to do so.

At luncheon he appeared and accosted the first lady at the table thus:

"Were you the lady I told to go to the devil?"

"No," said this lady and several others, all equally suprised and amused. At last by a series of separate interrogations he discovered the right lady. She responded with an indignantly virtuous air:

"Yes, I am the lady."

"Ah! then," said the steward, "the captain told me to tell you that you needn't go."—The Spectator.

Necessities.

Just where he came from didn't appear, but his raiment might be taken as a token that he was from the backwoods of a country pretty well back, and as he went into a family grocery on Jefferson avenue he attracted sufficient attention for the boss to come forward to see what he wanted.

"Got any corn whisky?" he asked.

"We don't keep it," replied the proprietor.

"Ner rye?"

"No."

"Ner applejack?"

"No."

"Ner old peach?"

"No."

"Ner moonshine?"

"No."

"Nothin' in that line at all?"

"No."

"Well, by gravy," he said angrily, as he started out, "what the dickens have you got that sign up thar, 'Families supplied with all the necessaries of life' for? Durn me ef we can't do better'n that at the cross-roads grocery."—Michigan Tradesman.

Was She a Boston Girl?

"Yes," said the young man, as he threw himself at the feet of the pretty school teacher, "I love you and would go to the world's end for you."

"You could not go to the world's end for me, George. The world, or earth as it is called, is round like a ball, slightly flattened at the poles. One of the first lessons in elementary geography is devoted to the shape of the globe. You must have studied it when you were a boy."

"Of course I did, but—"

"And it is no longer a theory. Circumstances have established the fact."

"I know; but what I meant was that I would do anything to please you. Ah, Angelina, if you but knew the aching void—"

"There is no such thing as a void, George. Nature abhors a vacuum. But, admitting that there could be such a thing, how could the void you speak of be a void if there was an ache in it?"

"I mean to say that my life will be lonely without you; that you are my daily thought and nightly dream. I would go anywhere to be with you. If you were in darkest Africa or at the North Pole, I would fly to you. I—"

"Fly! It will be another century before man can fly. Even when the laws of gravitation are successfully overcome there still remains, says a late scientific authority, the difficulty of maintaining a balance—"

"Well, at all events," exclaimed the youth, "I've a pretty fair balance in the bank, and I want you to be my wife. There!"

"Well, George, since you put it in that light, I—"

He Carried a Muff.

The other day a well-dressed man sat in a boulevard car going up town. The day was cold, the car was full and the usual discomforts of surface transit were turned on. The man mentioned was the observed of all observers. He carried a common black muff on his knees, his hands thrust in either end, and he had a far-away look in his eyes. The ladies exchanged amused glances. The gentlemen regarded the muff with various degrees of wonder and contempt.

"Newest style," suggested one gentleman to another.

"Yes; it's going to be a cold day to-morrow. When you see the pigs carrying straws—"

"That beats me," came in a stage whisper from across the way.

"Wonder if he wears corsets?" said another.

"What is it, anyhow?"

"Sorry I forgot my muff."

"I'll steal my wife's sealskin sacque to-night."

"Poor fellow! Somebody ought to see him home safely."

Amid these remarks the man with the muff sat quietly looking out of the window. He must have overheard some of them; he must have known that he was the object of universal curiosity and ridicule, but he gave no sign. It appeared, however, that he was only collecting himself for some final effort, for when he arose to leave the car at Seventy-second street he suddenly confronted his fellow-passengers:

"This is my wife's muff," he said bluntly. She left it on the bargain counter. I had to go back and get it. I'm taking it home. If you see anything funny in that, I'm d——d if I do."—New York Herald.

ROBERT BROWNING.

I wrote for men of mind—not merely those
Whose ears want soothing with the sweets of rhyme
Or well-turned phrases. For my verse, they say,
Runs roughly, as torrents do, that rumble down
Some deep Swiss valley. Yes, I have often felt
The impediment of language, as a rock
Whereon my noble thoughts were dashed in spray
Not like my Andrea, who having skill
Lacked somewhat as to soul, I having soul
Lack still—at least they say so. That may be,
I care not, so I win the thing I prayed for—
That I being dead might speak.

The Oil Lease Bill Finally Passed.

Geyer's Two Amendments Voted Down—The University Tax—Cigars and Tobacco—General News.

Columbus, Feb. 18.—(Special)—The senate yesterday discussed the Nichols bill for some time.

It authorizes the board of public works and the canal commission to lease state lands for oil purposes to the highest responsible bidders, after publication for 15 days of their intention to lease such lands.

Mr. Geyer offered an amendment providing that the parties leasing should be required to give a bond of $25,000 to indemnify adjoining property holders, and another amendment to require lessees to sink or bore wells within one year from the time of leasing the land.

Both of the amendments were defeated, and the bill passed.

Senator McConica said that if the amendments offered by Senator Geyer had been adopted, the Standard Oil company would have the land entirely under their control, but now they will have to come in under the same regulations as all others who may want to lease any of the state land for oil and gas purposes. Bill was finally passed: yeas, 17; nays, 4.

Cigars and Tobacco in Ohio.

The following statistics were taken from the returns received at the office of the labor commissioner:

The cost of materials, $1,742,361, added to $1,013,907, the amount paid in wages and salaries, make $2,756,268, the entire cost of production; this, deducted from $3,406,206, or the whole value of the product, leaves a net profit of $849,-938, or 78 per cent. of the whole capital invested. The capital invested equals $344.10 per employe.

By deducting the cost of materials from the value of product, the balance is the combined earnings of capital and labor, of which labor receives 60.93 per cent., and capital 29.07 per cent. (Labor here includes wage earners and salaried officials.)

Of the $2,756,268 entering into the cost of production, 36.8 per cent. was paid in salaries and wages, and the balance, 63.2 per cent. was paid for materials.

The total number of employes drawing $1,013,907 in wages and salaries is 3,163; of this number 128 are managers, salesmen, book-keepers and clerks, drawing in the aggregate $122,588, or an average salary of $957.72 each. Deducting 128 from 3,163 and $122,588 from $1,013,-907, we have 3,035 wage earners receiving $891,319, or an average of $293.68 each per annum.

Dividing the number of days worked during the year by the number of employes, gives a working year of 278 days, which, at $293.68 per year, gives an average daily wages of $1.06.

The average number of hours worked per day is nine; this gives an average hourly wages of 11.8 cents.

Flickinger's Labor Measures.

Representative Flickinger this morning introduced an important bill to regulate employment of inmates of the penitentiaries, reformatories and workhouses in the state

It provides that the total number of prisoners and inmates employed in penitentiaries, workhouses and reformatories of this state in manufacture of any one kind of goods, which are manufactured in this state outside of said penitentiaries, workhouses and reformatories, shall not exceed five per centum of number of all persons in this state outside of said penitentiaries, workhouses and reformatories employed in manufacturing of the same kind of goods as shown by the last federal census or state enumeration, except in industries in which not more than 50 free laborers are employed: act is to take effect and be in force after its passage.

He followed this up with a resolution providing for the appointment of a commission of two representatives appointed by the speaker, two senators appointed by the president of the senate, and two citizens not members of the legislature, appointed by the governor, to examine into the methods of employing labor in the institutions mentioned in his bill, with price of labor and material, and what the same brought in market this and last year.

The citizens' portion of the committee will have representatives of labor and manufacturers to watch their interests.

It also calls for the amount of money received for prison labor of all kinds in the state.

He supported the resolution by a short speech, in which he set forth the advantage of such an investigation.

Bills Introduced in the Senate.

Mr. Abbott—Authorizing the governor to appoint two reputable physicians to investigate as to advisability of establishing state institutions for reformation of drunkards and appropriating $2,000 for experiments extending for a period of nine months.

Mr. Spencer—Authorizing all municipalities in the state to grant perpetual street railway franchises on proper remuneration, and to prohibit the granting of the same gratuitous.

Mr. Stewart—To authorize Bellevue to issue $15,000 in bonds to improve streets.

Mr. Bain—Imposing a fine of $10 to $100 for tampering with tile drains.

Mr. Van Cleaf—To grant the board of public works of Columbus the right of way through the Ohio State university grounds on east bank of Olentangy.

Bills Passed the Senate.

Mr. Griffin—To allow garnishees to demand fees in advance and if not paid he shall not be in contempt of court for failing to answer.

Mr. Wood—Authorizing county commissioners to build and maintain public ferries where necessary and preferable to bridges.

Mr. Gilliland—Authorizing the village of Middlepoint, Van Wert county, to issue $5,000 in bonds to improve streets, if approved by a two-thirds vote of the people.

Mr. Iden—Providing that any person who sells, assigns or gives away any claim against a resident of Ohio for the purpose of having the same collected by attachments, proceedings or otherwise, in another state, shall be fined, on conviction, $20, and shall forfeit such claim.

The following bills were passed in the senate yesterday afternoon:

Mr. Clapp—Amending the road law in Lake and Geauga counties so as to provide for the destruction of Canadian thistles.

Mr. Pudney—Covering a technical error in the act providing for the case of insane inmates of the Ohio Soldiers' home.

Mr. Griffin—Providing that all honorably discharged soldiers who have been inmates of the state one year or more at the date of making application shall be eligible to the Ohio Soldiers' home and that in such cases preferences shall be given to those who served in Ohio regiments.

Mr. Taylor—Abolishing the present board of natural gas trustees in Urbana, and creating a new board of three members.

To Cure Drunkenness.

Mr. Abbott introduced iin the senate this morning a measure of much importance. It looks to the experimental treatment of habitual drunkeards by two physicians to be appointed by the governor, who are to rent an office in Columbus and treat, free of charge, by the latest methods, all who present themselves.

An accurate record is to be kept of all cases treated and a report is to be presented to the legislature at the adjourned session, the intention being to make provision for the permanent cure of drunkenness.

The physicians are to be paid $75 a month each, and the appropriation of $2,000, is made to carry out the purposes of the bill

Investigation.

Mr. Boxwell's bill making it compulsory on common pleas judges to appoint boards of visitors for inspection of county charitable institutions has passed the house

Knocked Out

Mr. Strock's bill providing that one female trustee should be on the board of county children homes, was defeated this morning after a heated debate.

Columbus Asylum.

Governor McKinley sent the following appointments to the senate as trustees of the Columbus insane asylum: S. W. Durflinger, Madison; A. B. Robinson, Union; H. H. Green, Knox; G. W. Morgan, Knox.

Mr. Durflinger having been a member of the senate was confirmed. The others were referred. They are reappointments, having resigned the offices some time ago. Republicans now have charge of the institution.

Notes.

Julius Whiting, jr., of Canton, was elected president of the penitentiary board of managers yesterday at their meeting. The present directory will remain for some time.

The senate yesterday afternoon, on motion of Mr. Lampson, ordered the report of F. C. Mendenhall on the Ohio and Indiana boundary printed in the appendix of the senate journal.

Senator Stewart introduced a bill yesterday to appropriate $500 to pay A. W. Meeker, of Huron, Erie county, for barns and sheds destroyed by fire caused by the carelessness of the First light artillery while in camp in August of 1890.

Ex-President Hayes made an argument last night before the senate committee on universities and colleges in opposition to the passage of the Nichols bill, which provides for a division of the tax raised under the Hysell law for the benefit of that university.

Ex-Attorney General Watson gives it as his opinion that the Australian ballot law is unconstitutional in so far as it relates to county members of board of elections. They are county officers and should be elected instead of being appointed by the probate judge.

Superintendent of Insurance Kinder turned $31,166.33 into the state treasury yesterday and Secretary of State Ryan followed suit with $19,704.60, retaining $3,200, which is in litigation under the Massie law, requiring railroads to pay $1 per month for each mile of railroad in the state.

MRS. BLAINE'S DIVORCE CASE.

Deadwood, S. D., Feb. 18.—Mrs. Jas. G. Blaine, jr., accompanied by her maid and her attorney, Judge C. S. Palmer, of Sioux Falls, have arrived here.

Judge Palmer stated that his client left a sick-bed to come to Deadwood and that she suffered a hemorrhage of the lungs on the train this morning. The divorce case will not be heard before Saturday and possibly Monday.

THE TOLEDO HARMONICS

At Wheeler's Last Night—An Excellent Program

Splendidly Given—Toledo Talent at the Front—The Audience Wild Over Miss Powell's Violin Playing.

About the usual number of music lovers and music patrons assembled at Wheeler's last evening, to enjoy, perhaps, the finest entertainment of its kind ever given in the opera house. Seldom are so many exceptionally good voices brought together in a chorus, as Prof. Whiting has under his charge. They show the best of training in voice, movement and expression and Prof. Whiting handles the baton with a master's skill. The Cecelia Ladies' quartet, and the Whiting gentlemen's quartet did themselves honor. "Dream Pictures" is a beautiful arrangement—the words from the German—and the fine shades of expression suited to the lines were artistically brought out. "How Sweet the Moonlight Sleeps" was one of the chorus gems, and the sprited "Song of the Vikings" was a delightful number.

Miss Maude Powell, without question the most accomplished violinist in the United States, captured her audience from the first. It can be only a master who would dare attempt to define the delicate and perfect charm of her playing. She is master of her instrument and gives it an expression which we call soul in music. She was recalled after every number and graciously responded. Those who failed to hear her may be told that since the days when Camilla Urso drew the bow to the enchantment of her hearers, so nearly her rival has not been known. Withal she has a most winsome personality, and was handsomely and becomingly gowned: (faint rose-tint silk with over-dress of pearl spangled illusion and girdle of lace and pearl pasmenterie).

Miss Doolittle never sang with greater power and in better voice. Her easy enunciation is greatly to be commended. Her rapid development of voice in both strength and beauty is gratifying to many who are watching her progress. The most exquisite touches were in Neidlinger's "The Robin."

The soloists in "Dream Pictures" were: Miss Doolittle, Mrs. Johnston, Misses Love, Pratt, Buck, Messrs. Lewis, Poulin and Buckout. In the Phantom chorus: Misses Pratt and Buck, Messrs. Colton and Seubert, all of whom are worthy especial mention. Miss Whiting, the accompanist for the evening, very acceptably performed her part. Mr. Ecker accompanied Miss Powell.

The stage presented a bright and pleasing appearance and the affair was well managed throughout. The only regret is that Toledo has not public spirit and patriotism enough to show appreciation of the high order of musical talent and culture in its midst. The audience was not a paying one, and while the Harmonics have won for themselves well-merited praise and proud distinction, the exchequer makes the usual discouraging exhibit.

ACROSS LAKE MICHIGAN.

The Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan Road

Will Build Four Steel Barges to Carry Cars Across the Lake Without Unloading.

The Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan railroad will have built four steel barges to carry their freight trains across Lake Michigan from Frankfort, Mich., to Kewanee, Wis. Each barge will have six tracks, capable of accommodating 24 cars. A new steel tug will also be purchased to handle the barges. This arrangement will do away with the rehandling of freight. The barges will be constructed with 12 water-tight compartments It is hoped to have the barges ready by the first of July.

Messrs. J. M. Ashely and H. W. Ashley were at Detroit yesterday for the purpose of consulting with the Detroit Dry Dock company regarding the building of the boats.

Measure to Prevent the Division of the State.

The Large Death Rate in Hamilton County is What Has Caused the Steps to be Taken.

Columbus, Feb. 18.—(Special)—An appeal case from circuit court of Hamilton county was filed in the supreme court this morning.

Ex-Senator Henry Streevo seeks to restrain the order of A. O. U. W. from dividing Ohio into two districts, of which Hamilton county is one, and the balance of the state the other.

The reason for making the division is that the mortality and assessments in Hamilton are about twice what they are in the rest of the state.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles

London wheat very firm. Quotations show much higher prices. English and French country markets higher. Liverpool wheat steady; quotations for red winter 1d higher. Corn firm.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 447,796 bu., compared with 216,070 bu. on the same day last year.

Bradstreets' reports wheat east of the Rockies decreased 1,747,083 bu. Corn increased 1,332,000 bu. Oats increased 200,000 bu. Pacific coast wheat decreased 514,000 bu.

Wheat higher, active and very strong at the advance. The bears have had no show at all to-day. First came the strong public cables, followed by the same tenor privately. Then Bradstreet's compilation of stocks, showing healthy decreases both east and west of the Rockies. But the most important were the sensational articles in the Chicago morning papers reciting the formation of a syndicate to buy the world's supply and stating that the Standard Oil company were long 60,000,000 to 80,000,000 bu. in Chicago and New York. This started the wheat at a material advance, and with the shorts getting in and the liberal purchases of cash wheat at all the principal markets the advance was easy to sustain. Cash wheat in Minneapolis is 1-4c above May.

Although Beerbohm quotes wheat closing very strong and 3-4@1d higher in Liverpool, private cables close Liverpool lower and Paris weak with favorable weather to the growing crops.

Clearances wheat to-day, including 35,-000 bbls flour, were 358,000 bus.

Knocks-of-five Dudley wants to be vindicated by being sent to Minneapolis as delegate-at-large from his state. President Harrison owes it to the expert to exert all his influence to that end.

Negotiations have been broken off and the Canadian envoys have gone home. No reciprocity with our neighbor at our own door. We will now proceed to make trade treaties with San Salvador, Guatemala and Patagonia.

The Rochester Herald (rep.) and the Philadelphia Times (ind.), both besought Gov. McKinley, yesterday, to "veto the outrageous gerrymandering bill of the Ohio legislature." Must our contemporaries be told once more that the governor of Ohio has not the veto power?

The World has been interviewing the governors of several states on the New York situation. "The western man" is looming up, and New York is notified that it must change its tactics soon or not be in it. Gov. Abbett sensibly answered that he had all the business he could attend to managing the state of New Jersey without meddling with the politics of other states. Gov. Boies replied that it would not be in good taste for him to declare himself, which means that he considers himself on the list.

On February 11 there was received at the Chicago custom house 1,349,000 pounds of tin plate, ordered by business men in that city. It came from Wales, and the duty was 2.2 cents per pound. When this tin plate is used up in manufacture, the manufactured articles will, of course, bear this added cost, and, equally of course, the purchaser will pay for it. It is time to get out the town crier and his bell in Chicago, and cry that lost tin infant industry through the streets. There is likelihood that the babe has been kidnaped by the tin plate liar.

So eager is the Blade to attack the administration of Dr. Tupper, superintendent of the Toledo Asylum, that it grossly overstepped the bounds of decency on Tuesday. Dr. Tupper calls attention to this matter in to-day's Bee. The present superintendent is accused of having set the murderer and suicide Malloy at liberty uncured. The facts are, as Dr. Tupper says, that the man was discharged from the asylum a month before Dr. Tupper was appointed superintendent. This reckless accusation of the Blade is characteristic and shows the brutality of its treatment of the present administration.

Yesterday the enumerators appointed by the New York legislature to take the census of the state began their work. Its primary purpose is to furnish correct basis for the reapportionment of senatorial and assembly districts. Seventeen years have passed since such a census was taken, not noting the Porter census, which the Empire state and its capital city emphatically repudiate. Mr. Porter is not happy over it, but he can afford to remain calm if the citizens can who thus pay twice for work done. The whole country will be interested in the outcome and hope it may justify or disprove the work of the government officers according to the actual facts in the case.

Oliver Ames, one-time republican governor of Massachusetts, has bolted McKinleyism. He has made a very frank statement of the reason for his opposition to the present protection-run-mad doctrines which are the sole issue with his party. The occasion was a recent dinner of the Middlesex club, and the result has been consternation to the Massachusetts McKinleyites. Some of his colleagues attempted to secure a modification of expression from Mr. Ames, and as a result he reiterated that the McKinley bill "needlessly raised many duties," and that some of the provisions of the present tariff, "too burdensome to be borne," are destroying New England industries. Now the effort is to show that Mr. Ames is flocking all by himself, and that what he says is of no moment, but Congressman Morse of Massachusetts is honest enough and manly enough to refute this. To the Washington correspondent of the Boston Journal Mr. Morse said:

"The position of Governor Ames in favor of free coal, free wool and free iron has been a very great injury to the republican party in congress and out of it, and is a constant embarrassment to the republicans from New England and other sections."

One of the latest gains to the middle west in scholarship is Prof. Richard T. Ely, who resigns from Johns-Hopkins university to accept a chair in the Wisconsin university. It is perhaps not too much to say of Prof. Ely that he stands at the head in this country of teachers in the study of economics and state finances. The faculty of the Wisconsin university have shown themselves not behind those of the Chicago and California universities in reaching for and securing the best. It is natural the east should be a little jealous of the west, but some of the exhibitions of that feeling are picayunish enough to be amusing For instance, the Boston Journal says:

The west, certainly as far as teachers and equipment go, will soon rival the institutions of the east. The only thing wanting will be the finer spirit of scholarship and the old traditions, which money cannot buy.

The "finer spirit of scholarship" in the west is the very cause of the demand for the best in teachers and equipment. Never was clearer illustration of the law of demand and supply. As for "the old traditions which money cannot buy" it is true the west has them not, and quite as certain no money would be spent on them by the west if they were for sale. Are the universities of the east so deeply imbued with reverence for these "old traditions?" How about the painting red of the statue of John Hancock a year ago?

SUGAR AND WOOL.

Opposition to the un-American sugar bounty is everywhere outspoken. As Mr. McKinley, in a speech to an Ohio audience once said in extenuation of the protective tax system—the people would never stand a direct tax; they do not feel it (he meant they do not see and understand it) under the protective system. Just why one class of producers should be paid millions of dollars bonus money out of the people's treasury while other classes are left to shirk for themselves, is not clear and no amount of sophistry can make it so. In fact there is no chance to weave a web around it full of glittering generalities and fine-spun theories such as has clothed the robber tariff all the years of its ascendency. This has been an exceptionally good year for farmers, but let there come a year of short grain crops, the sugar bounty must be paid just the same. The administration boasts of its free sugar, and points with pride to its consideration for the people in untaxing that commodity. Its pretensions are humbug through and through. The temper of the people was for lower tariff on the necessaries of life. To untax sugar would strike the south, principally, and refiners and northern beet growers and maple-sap boilers were quieted by a yearly donation from the government. In direct contradiction of the republican creed that the tariff is not a tax on the consumer, they halloo early and late, "see how we have lifted a tax of millions a year from the burdens of the people." In the maintenance of a tax for revenue a low sugar tariff was the least felt and brought the largest returns for the reason that, being an article of universal consumption, the addition to each consumer was infinitessimal and the aggregate was a considerable sum. The argument for protection could never be better applied than to sugar. We do not, and never have, produced anything like an adequate supply; but, if we have climate and soil to accomplish this end, why remove the product from under "the benign wing of a protective tariff" and torment people with the plain injustice of a bounty to producers? Republican argument was: "made free because we cannot supply the home demand" and "bountied to stimulate production to the end that we raise our own sugar." Consistent, very.

The argument for free sugar is applicable in every particular to "free wool," yet the duty was increased on raw wool when it was removed from sugar, acknowledging that in the latter case it had proven a failure—a discovery very suddenly made. Has not the tariff tax proven a failure the same in the case of wool? A constantly increasing duty has failed to stimulate production or bring better prices. On imported woolen goods amounting in valuation to forty-three millions dollars, at tax of $34,650,926 was collected—something more than 80 per cent. The revenue from raw wool amounted to six millions and a half dollars. In view of these figures and an empty treasury, the organs drop all attempt at justification of their inconsistencies and say simply, "we must have this income." A pretty mess they have made of it, and the reckoning is just begun.

The trustees of the Metropolitan Art Museum are seriously considering the closing of their doors again on Sundays, for reasons stated: They have lost $50,000 in bequests in one year, besides influential and wealthy friends through the policy of Sunday opening. Moreover, the pious paper of the metropolis recites in its usual elegant form of construction, that "filth and even criminals have been introduced," and expenses thereby greatly increased. In Christ's name, then, send the wretched poor and vicious back to their tenements and alleys and bar out the industrious six-day laborers with them. What has respectable New York to do with these except to keep them out of interesting and pleasant places, especially on the Lord's day?

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat refers to the fact that the democracy snubbed Tammany in 1876 and in 1884 and carried New York in both years. The St. Louis Republic calls this "a great, breathing, speaking truth," even if the Globe-Democrat is not "good authority on all democratic matters." The Republic further emphasizes the independence of Tammany which the democracy at large feels, and shows upon occasion, when it says: "The facts are that the only two victories won by the national democracy in 35 years were in the face of a slap at Tammany."

Consul-General New promulgates his opinion that President Harrison will have two walk-overs this year, one in the convention and the other at the polls. President Harrison bestowed upon Mr. New the best paid office he had to give, and thus, to the best of his ability, does Mr. New reciprocate in a largess of good wishes.

Delamater—didn't the republicans of Pennsylvania run a man of that name for governor of Pennsylvania? And is he the man who has just been tried for financial crookedness in national banking business? The same, the same. And where are the friends that stood around him when they were hand in glove together in politics? Echo answers, busy manipulating republican politics on the old plan.

The West Chester (Pa.) Republican "ventures the prediction" that Governor Pattison will head the democratic national ticket, and that the second place will go to Gray of Indiana, or Boies of Iowa. State pride probably suggests the arrangement of this ticket.

The New York World thinks the Chicago exposition has "two reasons for congratulating itself: the first is the intelligence with which it is sustained, and the second is the stupidity with which it is opposed."

Portugal can't spare the money and will not participate in the World's fair. And why is Portugal in financial distress?

The Harrison and Tracy boomlet suggests again more or less of that Chile sauce in politics.

JUDGE P. B. COLE DEAD.

Marysville O., Feb. 18.—Judge P. B. Cole died of Bright's disease yesterday, aged 77 years. Deceased was well known throughout Ohio, having served as prosecuting attorney of Union county, in both branches of the legislature, and as common pleas judge of this judicial sub-division.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Dr. Horton, the inventor of the railroad reclining chairs, is dead.

It is said that when Victorien Sardou laughs he is the ugliest man in Paris.

The First National bank of Groton, N. Y., has one of its most efficient directors in Mrs. Weltha M. Marsh.

The child born to Mme. Daudet the other day in Paris is a grandson of Alphonse Daudet and a great-grandson of Victor Hugo.

Mr. S. L. Clemens, who has gone to the Continental cures for gout and indigestion, writes that the sufferer is allowed to eat any kind of food he doesn't like.

Dr. J. F. Fox, representing the McCarthy-Healy wing of the home rule party in Ireland, is now in Chicago, endeavoring to convert Irish-Americans there to the support of his faction.

Miss Marsden, who has been striving to better the condition of the lepers in Siberia, and is to present their cause to the czarina, has traveled over 2,000 miles on horseback in prosecuting the work.

Mrs. John A. Logan and Mrs. E. B. Day of New Orleans, are planning to establish an industrial association for the purpose of training young colored girls for domestics and supplying help to housekeepers.

Mrs. Julia A. Carney, of Galesburg, Ill., is not widely known in the world of letters, and yet she is the author of that interesting little poetical morceau beginning "Little drops of water, little grains of sand," etc.

Rossini's centenary occurs on February 29, and the day will be extensively observed in the large Italian cities. Venice, where ten of the maestro's operas were first introduced to the public, will have a water festival.

Frank Hatton, who owns and edits the Washington Post, has been an avowed enemy of Blaine ever since the morning of Arthur's funeral, when the ex-secretary cut Senator Edmunds in the little parlor on Lexington avenue.

Edward Bok says that there are only four authors who can earn $20,000 a year with their pens, and these lucky ones are William Dean Howells, Robert Louis Stevenson, Mark Twain and Mrs. Burnett. Lew Wallace received $100,000 in eight years in royalties from "Ben Hur."

The Marquis of Lorne is growing in favor among the working classes of England since he laid down the proposition that when capital would listen to labor, but refused its just demands, declined to arbitrate and antagonized all efforts to redress its wrongs—strikes were not only justifiable, but praiseworthy.

Dr. Gatling, the gunmaker of America's Moscow, which is to say Hartford, is 72 years of age, but like Ericsson, the older he grows the more interest he takes in inventions. His hair and beard are white, but the doctor himself is an interesting example of the vigor and sprightliness of a hale old age.

That Joe Boalt is the latest candidate for the nomination against Street Commissioner Bower.

That the $100,000 bill for the issue of fire department bonds will be dropped into the hopper shortly.

That Secretary D. B. Smith's argument on the anti-option bill is a convincing one for his side of the case.

That a bill fixing a salary instead of fees for justice of the peace is among the possibilities for Toledo.

That James Stanton is being considered as a candidate for the council in the Fifth ward on the democratic ticket.

That Ben Wade flies around like a bird out of a cage since being relieved from service as United States marshal.

That Toledo divisions of the uniform rank will enter the contest for prizes at the coming session of the K. P. supreme lodge at Kansas City.

Why Not, Indeed?

Judge Woods' confirmation by the senate is still unsettled, though undoubtedly he will be confirmed in the end. It will not do for Harrison to let him be defeated, as it would throw a still darker shadow over the record of the Harrison campaign in Indiana. Woods and Wanamaker were both too useful to be left out in the cold. Will Dudley get the next plum? If not, then why not?—Auburn Courier.

Proper in Any State.

A bill that ought to be passed by the state legislature is Senator McMahon's bill providing that the inmates of the insane asylums of this state shall be permitted to write once in three months to their friends without having their letters opened. It is a proper bill.—New York Sun.

Modest and Wise.

Gov. Russell has once more shown his fine sense of the proprieties. He intimated to the legislature yesterday that the bill increasing the salary of the state's chief magistrate to $10,000 must, to receive his signature, be made to go into effect not earlier than next January.—Boston Globe.

Seeming and Being.

With Blaine out of the way, Harrison believes himself to be almost in conjunction with the next presidency. Venus the other night seemed to be almost in conjunction with Jupiter, but they were over 400,000,000 miles apart.—Chicago Herald.

TO CONFER WITH GROVER.

Gov. Campbell Fixing Up a Cleveland Delegation.

Cincinnati, Feb. 18.—A special from Hamilton, O., says that ex-Gov. Campbell will meet ex-President Cleveland at the Russell house in Detroit next Tuesday and confer with him. The purpose of the conference on the part of ex-Gov. Campbell is to assure the ex-president of a solid delegation for him in Ohio at the coming national democratic convention. Gov. Campbell, associated with certain other prominent Ohio democrats, proposes to try to make the Ohio delegation solid for Cleveland.

TRYING TO QUEER GLADSTONE.

London, Feb. 18.—The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, first lord of the treasury, in addressing the rural laborers league to-day, declared that Mr. Gladstone only intended to press measures for the benefit of the agricultural classes in England, after which he had pushed forward his homerule measure, the nature of which the liberal leader, according to Mr. Chamberlain, absolutely declined to define.

BLAINE MAY STRIKE OIL.

Pittsburg, Feb. 18.—John A. Snee, a prominent petroleum producer, has leased the farm of Secretary of State James G. Blaine, in Forward township, this county, and will soon put down a test well for oil. The farm comprises 340 acres. It is part of a tract of 4,000 acres. Mr. Snee has obtained control for the purpose of developing what is believed to be a very valuable region.

WANT HIGHER WAGES.

Lake Shore Telegraphers Met at Toledo

Last Evening and Took an Important Step.

Every Division of the Road Was Represented—The Petition That Will be Presented to the Company.

Last evening a meeting of the Lake Shore telegraphers was held at the Burnett house in this city to consider the matter of a request for higher wages.

Every division between Buffalo and Chicago was represented, about 40 in all.

The following petition which has been signed by nearly 600 operators on the road, addressed to the officials of the Lake Shore, clearly shows the stand taken by the operators and the requests they will make:

We, the undersigned employes of the L. S. & M. S. Ry. Co. in the capacity of telegraph operators, operator agents and others whose duties require them to do telegraphing for the L. S. & M. S. Ry. Co., do hereby petition and earnestly request the officials who have authority, to carefully consider for, and speedily grant to the class of employes, which this petition represents as a whole, without reference to individuals, an increase in the salary of each and every position held by a representatives of this class in the employ of the L. S. & M. S. Ry. Co. on the terms hereinafter stated. This petition represents no organization other than is embodied in it.

After having discussed among ourselves on every division, the propriety and necessity for an increase of remuneration, in keeping with such increases which have been granted in nearly every other department of the service of this railway company where skilled labor is employed, within the past six years, and in keeping with the increased responsibility which has been laid upon the department, believing it to be not only our duty to ourselves, our families, and to the public, but also in the interest of better service to the railway company which gives us employment, recognizing the fact that a large per cent. of the employes in this department are working for $40 or less per month, every day, 12 hours, which is less per hour than section laborers are paid, fully aware that the wages paid in this department as a whole are from 25 to 50 per cent. less than in any other department where equal skill and responsibility are required, considering the matter in every light, we believe it not only our privilege, but our duty to secure if possible the increase in salary before referred to and on the following basis:

1\. Twenty per cent. increase in the present salaries of all offices, and in addition.

2\. One day's wages extra for each Sunday that an employe is required to be on duty, nights or days.

We do not wish to work Sundays, but when necessary, believe that night as well as day employes should receive the extra.

Trusting this petition to your judgment and consideration, and requesting that it be returned to any of the undersigned after having been acted upon, asking you to apprise us all of your decision in this important matter, we remain, etc.

The following committee was appointed to present the petition to the officials and receive their answer: W. G. Leet, Toledo, Michigan division, chairman; Wm. Wadsworth, White Pigeon, Kalamazoo division; M. S. Lowe, Monroe, Detroit division; W. C. Murray, Buffalo division; J. Miller, Sandusky, Toledo division; J. W. Walker, Hillsdale, Lansing division; J. C. McNamara, Cleveland, Erie division; H. W. Gates, Andover, Franklin division, and A. W. Watson, Chicago, western division.

The operators have the best of feeling for the road and its officials and have no fear but that the company will meet them fairly and that the matter of wages will be amicably settled.

AIDING RUSSIA.

A Sensation Created in German Circles To-day.

Berlin, Feb. 18.—A sensation has been caused by a Munich newspaper exposure of the fact that a firm in Lundenburg, Baden, is making gun barrels for Russia, although the order has come by the way of France.

The kaiser is known to be strongly opposed to Germany giving any assistance that may strengthen Russia for future hostilities.

The fact that these gun barrels have been ordered from a German firm is considered as indicating that Russia is in haste to equip her army for service in the field.

BOSTON WOMEN OF COURAGE.

They Are Not Afraid to Chase Pickpockets in the Streets.

It is not one time in a hundred that a woman has the forethought and presence of mind to chase a pickpocket and recover her property, instead of screaming for the police. There were two such plucky woman on Washington street the other afternoon, however. They were near the crowded corner of Washington and Winter streets, when one of them felt a hand in her pocket. She made a grab for the hand, but it and her pocketbook were missing. With a rush she was after the thief, whom she grabbed right in the midst of team traffic on Washington street, which was for the time delayed. The horses of one car thrust their heads against the woman and her captive. Her friend was an able second, and laid a hand on the other shoulder of the pickpocket, a young man, some 25 years of age. "You fiend!" cried the other, "give up that pocket-book!" This was too much for the fellow's nerves, and he quickly pulled it out and handed it over. The woman "let go," and the man disappeared up the street on a dead run, while the teams once more moved along in unbroken procession.—Boston Journal.

GLADSTONIAN GAINS.

The Bye Elections in England Favor the Home Rule Cause.

The election of the Gladstonian candidate in the Rossendale district of Lancashire, represented for some years past by Lord Hartington, unionist-liberal, appears to be a victory of the first importance for the cause of home rule. A majority of 1,200 in a constituency which was considered doubtful naturally gives Mr. Gladstone great encouragement. A renewal of his arithmetical calculations as to the size of his majority in the next Parliament may now be confidently expected. As a pointer toward success in the next general election the Rossendale triumph can hardly fail to be of great value.

It is to be noted, however, before drawing from this event deductions of large import, that the Rossendale constituency has long been known as radical. It was, in fact, picked out for Lord Hartington in 1885 as the most radical district in Lancashire, and as the one sure to elect a liberal candidate. When Lord Hartington parted company with Mr. Gladstone on the home-rule issue the personal influence of Lord Harrington was such that he carried the election of 1886. He alone of the unionists, it is believed, could have done it. His representing a radical constituency has ever since 1886, in fact, been resented by the radical politicians as an irritating anomaly. Lord Hartington's elevation to the peerage on the death of his father has given the constituency a welcome opportunity to vote as it thought and felt, unswayed by consideration for the eminent public services of the candidate, and it has done so. In the view of the motter the Rossendale victory was rather a case of coming into one's own than of gaining new territory. A radical district voted radical, and no conversions to the cause of home rule are thought by the unionists to be indicated.

Evidently there are two sides to the question as to the meaning of the Rossendale contest. History is to be invoked to elucidate it. Still it must be admitted that, after all allowances are made, the situation appears to be very favorable for the home-rule cause. One success might be explained away, but the constant succession of Gladstonian successes are more obstinate.

IT MAKES THE DEAF HEAR.

SUCCESS OF A NOVEL INSTRUMENT

The Mysterious Restoration of Deafness By an Unseen Device—Old Theories Successfully Applied.

During the past few years there have been many rumors of the restoration, in some mysterious way, of the hearing of those who were known to have been deaf for many years. This had led to an investigation by those interested, and it has been found that this happy change has been made by the use of a most simple, yet ingenious device, which was invented by a gentleman in Bridgeport, Conn., named D. H. Wales. This device is the same to the ears as are glasses to the eyes, and is simply a soft rubber disc, arranged on a rubber spring, and so shaped that when inserted in the ear it will focus the waves of sound on the natural drum, thus increasing the vibrations of the latter.

The possibilities of a device of this nature have long been known, but the many attempts to use this knowledge have been such utter failures that it was considered beyond our present knowledge of the ear to make a practical instrument of the kind. Consequently when this device was first invented, not much attention was given the same, as it was thought to be merely an old enemy in a new dress; but gradually this slight prejudice was dispelled, until, at the present time, most physicians and aurists look kindly upon the instrument, and seem pleased at the success it is meeting.

At a recent interview, Mr. Wales made the remarkable statement that, to his knowledge, the device which he calls Sound Disc, had never failed where relief was afterward obtained by any medical, surgical or mechanical means, excepting a powerful ear trumpet, which he says is more powerful than his device. It would seem to be an ideal device for the deaf, as it is worn in the ear, out of sight, for months at a time, and, as far as we can learn, is pronounced safe and comfortable for the patient. Many times it has proven itself to be an advancement in the science of acoustics by relieving the most obstinate cases which had defied medical treatment for years.

What may be the ultimate result of the use of this device—whether the results thus far obtained will warrant its use in such a variety of cases that it will stop the progress of deafness in the future to such an extent that it will avoid the use of ear trumpets we can not say; but the desirability of a device of this nature, as regards its safety, its benefit, and general comfort to the user, none will fail to admit.

THE MODEST LOVER.

When Charles called on his love one night,
He found the maid engaged in weeping,
And though engaging was the sight,
He deemed it somewhat out of keeping,
Because she was engaged to him.
And so he asked her why she cried;
And she, with eyes both moist and dim,
Drew forth her 'kerchief and replied:

"Dear Charles, I had to cry, you see,
Because my mind was in a whirl;
Sup-sup-pose you never had met me,
And gone and loved some other girl?
Suppose, dear Charles, you'd m-married her
Be-before our courtship had begun;
Ju-just such a course you might prefer,
B-but, darling, what would I have done?"

Charles stood and twirled his moustache tips
And rose in his own estimation,
Then bent and kissed her on the lips,
The vainest lover in creation.
"You've got me," said he, with a sigh;
Then gave the tips another twirl;
"So, dearest, if you've got to cry,
Just do it for that other girl."

GOOD BYE DAYS

In Bonny Scotland—Friendless and Alone

For a Few Hours—A Stylish Hotel Wedding—New Friends—A Little Run on the Irish Coast—The Stormy Sea.

Before me lies an open letter from a Bee reader in a neighboring city, in which is said "I believe Barbara is too considerate to leave her fellow tourists stranded in Scotland in this manner, and she will yet bring us home with her across the Atlantic." A number of other letters with words of like import encourage me, and it is with pleasure to myself as well, that I again put the pilgrim pencil to paper. I have already told you how I missed getting return passage on the ship with my party of Toledoans and Detroiters. Well, I felt a little homesick twinge when I went down to the wharf, in Glasgow, to see them all sail away and leave me without friend or acquaintance to whom I could address myself. I went over the gang plank ashore, solitary and alone, back into Glasgow city, up the hill on Bath street to the pleasant Alexandra hotel from the tower of which the stars and stripes were flying (to tempt American custom) determined to make myself comfortable and life livable for the intervening days before the State of Nebraska should sail. I didn't turn to look once to see the old ship with good Captain Main on the bridge, making out into the Clyde, afloat for my "ain blessed countrie."

An American isn't alone a great while in any hotel in the old world. Directly I became acquainted with a lady and her daughter from Chicago, and a mother, son and daughter from Akron, Ohio, pleasant, companionable persons, all of them. We went together to hear the "Spurgeon of Scotland" preach, we shopped on Buchanan street and went into the mills where they manufacture the Scotch tweed for women's gowns and made our selections, fresh from the loom. We also became interested in several hotel customs quite new to us. One of these was "the hotel wedding," as common in Scotch cities as the church wedding is with us. The Alexandra makes a special of swell weddings and so announces on advertising cards and stationery. During the few days of my stay, three were celebrated in fine form. The wedding breakfast parlor is a light, bright, beautiful room daintily finished and furnished. On the most pretentious occasion we were invited to behold the room with its floral decorations, its tastefully arranged and flower bedecked table; we were also shown the parlor where the ceremony was to take place, the bride's boudoir, the groom's parlor, and the bridal chamber, en suite, all tastefully dressed with flowers, the white heather everywhere predominating. It is the blossom that brings good luck, and takes the place of the orange blossom with us, and the delicate spire of tiny pure white bells surrounding the fine-needled evergreen stems are dainty enough for such high distinction. The tall white bride's cake is a feature of the feast, covered with glistening icing and spun sugar in cupids with wings and frost flowers and other appropriate designs.

The bride and groom were heartsome, happy looking lad and lassie, she twenty years old or thereabouts and he, a few years her senior. He was a merchant's clerk in a city some miles away and they came in by train, attended by a large party of relatives and friends. These would nearly all return after the feast, though some would stay to see the wedded couple off for Edinburg and London the next morning.

There was something very pretty about it—and restful. There is no rush and confusion. If American hotels had the domestic air that pervades the best hostleries of Scotland, I should say I would like to see the hotel wedding custom introduced into this country. It saves borrowing dishes and napkins and wearing oneself out in preparation where things are unprepared and inconvenient at best, in the average household.

After my new friends left me I went over to Belfast, and made a little detour into Ireland, of which I shall write another time.

* * * *

The day came at last. The white-capped maid, the white-aproned butler, the kind host and hostess, with assurances that they should go to America to the world's fair and would see me there, all accompanied me to the cab door, and said as pleasant good-byes as if I had been one of the family. And when the honest Scotch people do this you know it is sincere. Mine host Cuddeford brought an extra package of purple heather, which he had just succeeded in capturing from a street peddler, and so with bundles and budgets and good wishes I was whirled again to the wharf of the Allen-State line steamers, where their largest and best boat lay waiting for passengers. I found my steamer rug, chair and wraps intact, as I had left them in the store room of the company three months before, with never lock or bolt to keep them from meddlers, and, better than all, found quite a little squad of "Nevada" passengers, who like myself got left because they didn't hustle for state rooms in season. The boat was cleanly, bright and pleasant. Great plants bearing tall, white lilies, in luxuriant blossom filled the conservatory that opened above the dining saloon, and in the ladies' cabin were a fine organ and an excellent piano. The boat, like all the passenger steamers last year, was crowded fore and aft. My nice two-berth room on the chart was a four-berth room when I got to it, but nearly all the passengers had a like experience, and as the rooms were quite large anyway, nobody grumbled. My room mates were pleasant ladies, two of them of Scotch extraction who reside in western New York, and the third a Virginia lady, born in Belfast, who had been ever to pay the old home and friends a visit after an absence of twenty-five years. A bride and groom, wedded the morning before, had telegraphed for "the bridal chamber." He was a returned missionary who was taking his bride back to India with him. They were going across the continent, and would sail from San Francisco. He was bunked forward in the boat with a number of gentlemen, and she was assigned to a four-berth ladies' room aft, and even they laughed with the rest of the crowd.

One hundred Polish Jews were placed by themselves in the steerage. With their heavy, set faces and coarse canvas garments, they were a novel and a piteous sight to us. There were no inspecting officers visible. There were dirty, bare-headed women, half-clad men and children with a single garment, guiltless of hats or shoes. There were good faces, bad faces—faces of nearly every nationality. At these ports where the slower passenger boats and fewer of them arrive and depart, they are more certain not to be hindered in getting away. We looked vainly for a trace of sentiment at leaving home and friends, in their countenances. Their chief anxiety seemed to be to get started past all possibility of detention.

There is a pleasurable excitement connected with the ingathering of the crowd of passengers on the home-going steamer. Many of them who became prime friends in the passage over have run upon each other here and there in their touring and many have not. Such greetings, such experiences to exchange, such anticipations and dreads. Will it be stormy going over? (good thing there is no means of knowing). But there is not much opportunity for speculating at this particular juncture of affairs. I have been greatly disillusioned as to the romance connected with the sailing of a vessel. The noise and hustle and crowding incident to lading, the sailors running everywhere and everybody in the way, the horrible wharf odors, your own luggage to look after—if you have it on deck, things are piled over it and you feel like seeing it filed somewhere for future reference; if you fee a fellow and get it taken to your state room, nobody guarantees its safety and you can't stay in the stuffy little box and watch it. And somebody who delights to add to the sum of human misery tells you that the dangerous time is just before the moment of sailing when pilferers can skip away on shore and you are borne out beyond the possibility of reaching them. So between the trotting and the fussing and the confusion, there is very little time to stand picturesquely on deck and shed tears and wave adieus and think sentimental things about the lovely, hospitable shores you are leaving, perhaps forever. You can waft your farewells to bonny Scotland after you get past the first smells of the Clyde and through the great ship-yards.

The first thing we did was to get lost in the fog off Greenock. I wish I could picture for you the mull and crag, rocky heights with lovely green intervales of Scotland's shores when the heavy sea fog is driven in great white sheets over and against them. The crags loom black as night, in their misty shrouds and the caves underneath look as if they might lead to the place where Jove forges his thunderbolts or Odin brews his hurricanes and builds his icebergs. The next turn, the sun will send a flood of silver light to part the white veil, and a stretch of green shore-farm, or evergreen woodland will smile at you like a bit of summer Eden. No Scotch or English poet has sung up Scotch scenery with more vivid effect than Miss Mulock.

If you have her volume (if you haven't buy or borrow it) and read her "Sweet Rothsay Bay," "Grace at Clydeside," "Roslin Castle," and "The Aurora on the Clyde."

"When the mists have rolled in splendor" over dark Ailsa Craig and beyond the mull of Kintyre and the sky becomes a lovely expanse of pearl and blue, we find ourselves opposite Moville, where we cast anchor and wait for passengers who come from Londonderry by rail and out to the ship by tender. As the wait is usually for hours or more, a dozen or so of the adventurous ones climb down a dizzy kind of ladder at the ship's side, into an immense rowboat bound for the Irish shore where quaint Moville straggles over the high green slopes and rocky hills. After we are seated as closely as possible and begin to pull out, somebody notices a knot of crape on the pilot's sleeve, and he tells us of a fearful accident [illegible] of young men and women the night before in a boat, the mate to his own. A squall struck them, drove them onto the rocks, overturned their craft and seven out of eighteen were drowned. "But," he said, "I've pulled this boat back and forth for twenty years and never lost a man or had an accident." All the same we were glad when we set feet on the stairs that led up to terra firma—"the ould sod." None of us had been on the west shore of Ireland, so it was a new experience. The first thing that happened was too funny to describe, and except you have seen it you will scarcely understand what it is like. A small swarm of drivers with old frayed-out whips in their hands and a rich brogue all their own were waiting to lift us through the trapdoor from the boat house stairs to the high sidewalk, and they all began to clamor at once "Would we go out to Green Castle?" (that's what tourists who go ashore always do). Were you ever pulled into shreds by Niagara hackmen? There stood a scant line of jaunting cars—did you ever see a jaunting car? ever ride in one? the seats run parallel with the horse (that's good, isn't it?) only behind him, of course, with a covered box between, where you can store your luggage—if it rains or you want to, and at the end of this box is the driver's seat (in front close to the horse). Riding sideways, you see, there is an enormous opportunity to catch all the scenery—on your side. The two seats have room for three each, comfortably, four if you crowd. These are upholstered; (the ones I write of had been). Two broad-tired, clattering wheels give the thing a jog and a bounce, and as the nag with many good "points" yanks it along over the smooth rock road, you—well, you hang on and say "What fun." I am a bit ahead of my story, however, but it's just as well. I can't tell you how each shabby driver stood beside his quaintly harnessed steed and declared it to be the most illegant baste intirely that ever was in all Moville—and the time he could make on the beautiful road to the castle. Then "behold the comfortable cushions" (wth the stuffing getting away.) They quarrel with you (doing it all themselves if you don't decide instanter), and then quarrel with each other about you after you do decide. You climb yourself in by way of the single step swung at the back, while they gaze at you with an expression of face you can't translate till you become better acquainted. The low-backed car is higher from the ground than it is in the estimation of your delineator. There's a little shelf for your feet but unless you are very tall in the legs you won't bother about striking it but will just let your feet switch around as it happens. At last the procession bounces along up the hill to the main street of the village.

Quaint, primitive looking old houses, all sorts of architecture and no sort at all. The most noticeable signs are women's names—Mc's and O's—over their saloon doors. There are more women than men keeping saloons in Moville and they call them saloons, right out, not "places," "stores" and other high-sounding names to mislead. As we go yanking along, women and children poorly clad and not at all clean flock to the doors. But only the human looks forlorn. The road is perfect and winds along the sea, high and picturesque. The green fields on the other side are so green, and the odor of growing things mingled with the salt air makes a delightful atmosphere. Our ship looks quite dim in the increasing distance.

There is the loveliest blossoming heather on the steep hillsides and the largest Irish daisies grow at the base of the low stone wall (along the sea and high above it), and fuchsia trees, such as grow in California, loaded with crimson and purple blossoms lift their shapely branches above the green thorn and holly hedges that close in the poor, sodden little patches of farm lot and garden. An American wouldn't consider a "farm" like these large enough for a runaway for three pigs. It has rained the whole year in Ireland and almost as bad in Scotland and England, too, for that matter, and here, in late September, grass and grain are lying in spoiled heaps, not worth the gathering. The low-roofed, white-washed cabins are scarcely larger than the square, close-packed heaps of peat fuel beside them. And the barefoot, dirty forlorn women and children that ran after us with outstretched palms—heaven pity them. Even more pitiful were the stooping, shambling, hopeless old men, moving slowly about the little fields where there was nothing for them to do. And yet they tell us this is not the distressed portion of Ireland.

All I know about Green Castle is that it is a very ruinous ruin, that the fighting O'Donaghues held it against all invaders after every stronghold in the northwest had fallen. It dates back to the palmy days of ancient Ireland and went to pieces with her decline. It was an immense affair as the straggling ruins show. We picked shamrock and wild flowers as we jaunted back to the village, climbing down to pluck heather and daisies every little way, and so laden, back to our ship hungry as wild animals. Twenty-four hours since we steamed down the Clyde and we were not yet fairly started.

All day Saturday we felt our way along through dripping fog. (We sailed Friday; the Allan-State line company is not superstitious). Sunday morning it began—the gale. The boat pitched and rocked and shivered worse and worse with every hour's travel, and when night settled down on the sea the sky was black and the rain drove in sheets against us. The vessel tossed so I was afraid and climbed out of my berth and made a pretense of going to the ladies' private cabin where I knew the stewardesses were bunked. Somehow it's such a comfort to be near one who is not at all alarmed and who will divert your mind by telling of worse storms. It is selfish and cruel to do this, because the overworked women need their sleep. I shall remember so long as I live the lessons in faith and trust that were taught me by these busy workers. I said to Mrs. Pitt, of the Nebraska, (as I had said to Mrs. Webb, of the Nevada when we were going over), "Do you never get dreadfully frightened?" and they made substantially the same reply—"I do my duty and trust the Lord."

I felt better in the cosy little cabin because the electric lights were burning and it was nearer amidships, so you didn't feel the rolling so badly. I got inside a big soft steamer rug, and sat on the carpet by Mrs. Pitts' sofa and put my head on her pillow and she smoothed my hair soothingly and told me about when she was stewardess on a Canadian cattle boat, how the sheep and cows got sea-sick just like persons and they fed them beef tea and brandy sling with a teaspoon, and how thankful the cows would look at her with their great solemn eyes, and the sheep would give tender little bleats of gratitude. The only passengers on these boats were the men who had the cattle in charge and a few who were allowed transportation. She told of a frightful storm in the beginning of winter, when the boat was so crowded that stalls were built for cattle on the upper deck. One night the gale swept the roof off them all into the sea and the poor creatures, covered with ice, and drenched anew with every sweep of the waves, terrified even the sailors with their bellowing. Many of them were swept off and many more had legs broken and eyes thrust out with horns and were killed and thrown overboard the next morning. One big fat ox was lifted bodily and deposited on the captain's bridge, and in the inky darkness the captain didn't know who was his strange company. He poked him with his foot and addressed (as he supposed) his chief officer, telling him to "go below if he could get there, as the waves would wash him overboard."

My nerves got quiet and I went to sleep in my cramped position and slept until an extra lurch of the boat rolled me across the floor and bumped my head against the door. And yet, believe me, this was but amusement, compared with what was in store for us. Yours,

BARBARA MOSS.

Boot and Shoe Workers Want More Money.

They Also Want Shorter Hours, and Will Have to Do Battle with the Employers.

Beverly, Mass., Feb. 18.—The Boot and Shoe Workers' union has notified the manufacturers that an advance in wages will be demanded for the cutters as follows: Outside cutters, $16 per week, old rates $15; lining and trimming cutters, $13.50, old rate $12.

It is also demanded that 59 hours constitute a week's work, and that all work between 5 and 6 o'clock on Saturday evenings be paid for extra. The new rates are to go into effect on the 22d inst.

It is generally understood that the manufacturers will not accede to the new rates. They say the condition of trade does not warrant the advance.

Realistic Story in Blue Jeans—Fairies Well Next Week.

"Blue Jeans," the great success, will be seen here next week for two nights, Friday, Saturday and matinee, February 19-20. The sunshine of its comedy brings gladness to the heart, and its pathos is like moonbeams on a falling shower, every scene is so bright and pure. As the story is told there is a fascination which holds one spell-bound until the curtain falls, when it is realized that "Blue Jeans" is an ingenious combination of mirth, the tenderest affections, the most delicate feeling, the strongest emotions and burning passions. It is one succession of surprises from grave to gay, from lively to severe. The charm of the piece is the simplicity. It is rich in dramatic situation and rare in the ability of the cast.

Fairies Well.

Not in years have the public had an opportunity of witnessing such a chaste and pleasin Irish play as "The Fairies' Well," by the W. H. Powers' company. The love story, the little comedy bits, flashing here and there, make it a little gem of a play. No uncouth language offends and there is an entire absence of constables, evictions or far fetched effects. The scenery used by the company is an ever-ending source of delight as each rise of the curtain discloses an original effect, each one prettier and more pleasing than the last.

One of the cleverest things in the play is the specialty introduced by the Silver Bell quartette, composed of Messrs. Manning and Davis, and the Starr Sisters. Their performances never fail to win the plaudits of the audience, and repeated encores test their cleverness in amusing an audience.

To partially supply the loss of natural flavor and color caused by this treatment, fragrant gums and dyes are used.

DR. SIDNEY RINGER, Professor of Medicine at University College, London, and Physician to the College Hospital, perhaps the greatest English authority on the action of drugs, states in his "Handbook of Therapeutics" that "the sustained administration of alkalies and their carbonates renders the blood it is said, poorer in solids and in red corpuscles, and impairs the nutrition of the body." Of ammonia, carbonate of ammonia, and spirits of ammonia, he says: "These preparations have many properties in common with the alkaline, potash, and soda group. They possess a strong alkaline reaction, are freely soluble in water, have a high diffusion-power, and dissolve the animal textures. . . . If administered too long, they excite catarrh of the stomach and intestines."

Such Was the Order of the Police Commissioners

With Regard to the City Pound at the Meeting Last Evening—The Annual Reports.

The police commissioners held a very short meeting last evening.

Health Officer Fisher submitted an annual report of the health and sanitary departments. The milk and meat inspector reported 261 samples of milk tested and 48 new dairies established. He inspected 153 cars of Chicago meat and condemned 2,817 pounds.

The city chemist reported several cars of fruit analyzed, which he found in a fermented condition, with slight traces of tin apparent, being decidedly unwholesome for human food.

A sample of sweet pickle brine was tested and found to contain 80 per cent. of salicylic acid to one gallon of vinegar. One sample of black pepper was examined and found to contain sand and starch.

The mortality report for the year, compiled by Health Officer Fisher, was complete in every detail. The total number of deaths from all causes during the year was 1,392, an increase of nine over last year. There were 311 deaths from zymotic diseases, 119 less than reported during 1890. Of constitutional diseases there were 215 deaths against 187 for 1890. Of this number 125 died of consumption. From local diseases there were 642 deaths; development, 125; death by violence, 90.

During the year 295 cases of diphtheria were reported, 190 less than during 1890. The total number of cases of scarlet fever reported during the year was 54, being 27 less than 1890.

Dr. Fisher made a statement with regard to the birth report. He said it was very incomplete and unsatisfactory. There is an ordinance compelling attending physician or heads of families to make out and submit a birth certificate in each instance. But he said there was no compensation provided, which, in consequence, conflicted with a state law; that no man could be compelled to do something for nothing. In his opinion it would be wise to amend the ordinance so as to allow a nominal fee for each certificate returned. This would be an inducement, and then the ordinance could be enforced. Other cities allowed 50 cents each, but he thought 10 cents would be sufficient. No action was taken.

Secretary Burney stated that the annual report of the police department was ready for the printer.

Dr. Fisher read an extensive paper on diphtheria, its origin, development, and treatment, which was very complete and showed a careful preparation.

Mr. Kruse made inquiry as to what action had been taken by the city council on the order of the abatement of the city pound, which had been made three months previous. Dr. Fisher stated that the special order to him demanded the abatement of the nuisance but gave no power to remove any buildings or tear down any fences. The council it was learned had taken no action. Mr. Kruse made a motion that the council be notified to abate the nuisance, remove all buildings and fill up the stagnated pools within 30 days or the health department would do it and charge all expenses to the city.

Complaint was filed against Officers Herman and Arthur Langdell. Herman was charged with a general neglect of duty, and Langdell with failing to report at roll call. They will be given an opportunity to explain at the next meeting.

AGAINST THE CITY.

Claims for Damages and Abatements.

Defective Sidewalks Bring in Three Claims—Thousands of Dollars in Abatements Asked.

The council committee on judiciary met last evening and found an immense number of claims before them for action. The session was a long one and part of the business was disposed of, but not all.

Among the claims against the city were three for personal injuries.

Otto Wagner asked for damages for personal injuries sustained by a fall at the crossing of Starr avenue and the Belt Line railway. There was no crosswalk there and this reason he alleged as the cause of his fall. The committee rejected the claim on the grounds that it was the duty of the railroad to maintain a crosswalk at this point.

A claim was presented from Chas. S. Vidhart, asking for $1,000 damages for injuries caused by a fall on a defective sidewalk on Air Line avenue. A claim for damages was also presented from Mrs. Phoebe Miller, for injuries sustained in a like manner. These two claims were laid over until the next meeting.

A large number of claims for abatements of assessments amounting to over $8,000 were acted upon by the committee. Some were rejected, others allowed and still others were referred for investigation.

Postmaster Foster, of Lubec, Me., writes that after the grip, Hood's Sarsaparilla brought him out of a feeble, nervous condition, into complete strength and health.

Hood's Pills have won high praise for their prompt and efficient, yet easy action.

BURGLARS AT MIDDLEPOINT.

Lima, O., Feb. 18.—At an early hour yesterday morning burglars entered the general store of W. A. White at Middlepoint. They blew open the safe with dynamite and secured money and jewelry to the amount of $500. Two dozen gold watches were taken. The noise of the explosion awakened several of the people living near, and a posse was formed, who pursued the burglars, but they escaped in the darkness.

TO MOTHERS.

Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

BURNED A HOLE IN THE FLOOR.

Millersburg, O., Feb. 18.—There was considerable excitement about the court house yesterday over the discovery of a large hole burnt in the floor of the jury room. Had there not been iron joists with concrete between them, shutting off the air, in all probability another $125,000 court house would have gone up in smoke.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, but it is thought someone who had access to the room threw a cigar stump in a box that had sawdust, and it ignited.

The claims of Salvation Oil are more than substantiated by almost miraculous cures. The surest and quickest way to get cured of a cold is by using Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup

NEW CORPORATIONS.

Columbus, O., Feb. 18.—The following articles of incorporation were filed with the secretary of state to-day: The Mutual Benefit Accident Insurance company, Cincinnati; the Washington council, No. 12, Jr. O. U. A. M., Canton; the Citizens Building and Loan association, Coshocton, capital stock $50,000; the board of trade of the city of Middletown, O.; the Columbia Sewer Pipe company, Akron, capital stock $50,000; the D. E. McNicol Pottery company, East Liverpool, capital stock $100,000.

$400,000 FIRE BOAT.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 18.—A contract was awarded to-day to Palmer & Son., of Niantic, Conn., for the construction of a fire boat to cost nearly $400,000. The boat will be 106 feet in length and will be provided with all the latest appliances for fighting fire.

Strange Story Connected with the Death of an Indiana Miser.

A searching party that had been two days looking for Louis Vilmas, a rich old miser, who had been last seen in this city on Christmas evening, found him on Saturday night dead in a small creek in the woods near his house, which was on on a hill near Mooresville, five miles north of here. Connected with his death is a strange story. Vilmas had come to New Albany, as was his annual custom, to purchase presents, as he said, for the children of his aged sister, residing somewhere in the state of Maine. He was seen to have a large wad of bank notes, which he displayed in the barroom of the hotel, and startled all who knew him by offering to treat the whole house. He drank several egg-nogs, and became as merry as a young man. His conduct was so unlike his former self that he was asked what had come over him. To this he replied: "This is my birthday. I have now lived three-score and ten years, which I swore I would do on the day I was fifty. I'll celebrate it if it kills me."

For an hour the old man unbosomed himself to the landlord, and told the story of his life. He then confessed that the woman to whom he annually sent presents was an old sweetheart who had jilted him in his younger days. Vilmas said he had killed his old rival one cold winter night in Maine, after the two had been on a spree together. They quarreled on a bridge over a creek, near the home of the girl with whom both were in love, and he, being the stronger, threw his companion over the parapet. The next morning his rival's body was found frozen in the ice. Miser Vilmas's hearers were inclined to doubt his story, and joked him about it, saying that he had drank too many egg-nogs. On this he straightened himself up, and replied that maybe he had, and then buttoned his overcoat across his chest and started home on horseback.

On Christmas it was reported that Vilmas' horse had returned home without its rider, and people at once jumped to the conclusion that he had been murdered. Saturday night he was found as described in the small creek. The body was frozen in the ice so firmly that it had to be chopped out. Those who had heard the miser's Christmas evening story were stricken with great wonder at the apparent sign of the hand of fate in bringing about his death.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

OHIO CHESS TOURNAMENT

Will Open at Toledo Monday Next.

Three Toledoans Will Enter for the State Championship—Rules Governing the Contests.

Toledo chess devotees are busy arranging for the sixth annual meeting and tournament of the Ohio Chess association, which will be held in Toledo, commencing Monday next.

Play in the championship tournament and free for all will commence at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning. The entries in the former contest are Maurice Judd, C. Locke Curtis and J. E. Martin of Toledo; E. L. Blumenshein, of Dayton; Sydnor Hall of the Cincinnati Chess club and W. C. Cochran of the Mt. Auburn Chess club. It will be a hard fought contest.

In the free for all many local players will take a hand. The visitors will be entertained socially Monday evening, when refreshments will be served. The contests will take place at the Republican club, 227 Superior street. The hours of play will be from 9:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.; 3 to 6 p. m., and 8 to 11 p. m.

Rules applicable to both tournaments are as follows:

If a game is not concluded at adjournment of any session, a diagram of the position shall be made, signed by both, and the player having the move shall put in in writing, seal it and hand it with the diagram to the secretary.

In all games succeeding the first, play shall commence within half an hour from the time both players are at liberty, unless the hour of adjournment falls within that time. In such case play shall commence at the beginning of the next session.

Play shall be governed by the chess code as found in Cook's Synopsis, except as express provision is made by these regulations. All disputes arising between players shall be referred to the president or an umpire designated by the committee for that session, and his decision shall be final.

At the close of every game the players shall report to the secretary in writing, signed by both, the opening adopted and the result of the game.

When both players desire to smoke during a game they may resort to a room set apart for that purpose; but smoking is prohibited in the other rooms devoted to play, during the sessions of the associations.

Special rules for championship tournament are as follows. Entrants shall draw from a box numbers which each will retain throughout the tournament. They will then proceed to play with the persons and in the order designated in a table, which will be so arranged as to give each player two games with every other, and the attack in one-half of his games.

The time limit shall be 20 moves an hour, and the clock of the player having the move must be started at the prescribed time for beginning or resuming a game.

Players must keep and hand to the secretary scores of all games played by them in this tournament, and may append such notes as they desire.

The winner of the largest number of games, excluding those who fail to complete their scores, and counting one-half to each, shall be proclaimed champion of the association for 1892. If two or more tie for first honors in the championship tournament, the tie shall be played off under these rules, and in such order as the committee may direct.

Special rules for free-for-all—Entrants shall draw numbers from a box, No. 1 shall play with No. 2, No. 3 with No. 4, holders of the odd numbers having the white pieces and opening move.

As fast as games in the first round are finished, winners shall be matched against winners, and losers against losers. The one that had the last attack shall yield the opening move to the other, and where both are in the same position as respects the attack, they shall determine by lot who shall take white pieces and opening move.

As fast as games in the second round are finished, winners of two games shall be matched against each other, and in the same way winners of one and winners of none, respectively, the right to opening move being determined as before. Thus in each round players in the same rank (ascertained by games won, draws not counting), shall be matched against each other until there remains but one player (not counting those who may drop out) who has lost no games, and he shall be declared the winner of the free-for-all.

The parties to a draw game shall play a second game with each other, the one having the defense in the first, taking the attack in the second. If the second game should result in a draw, each shall be credited with a game won and be advanced to the next rank.

All pairing should be done by the secretary, subject to appeal to the umpire in cases of dissatisfaction.

If one of the matched pair is present and ready to play at the appointed time and the other is not, the game shall be scored in favor of the former.

On appeal of either player, the umpire may prescribe a time limit of 20 moves an hour in any game, and assign some person to register the time.

DRUNK AND DRESSED UP.

London, Feb. 18.—Another popular idol fell to the ground and was smashed today. Miss Daisy Hopkins, the "Cambridge heroine," was sentenced to seven days imprisonment for being drunk and disorderly and for using obscene language and assaulting the police.

Daisy Hopkins will be remembered as the "heroine" of the Cambridge spinning house outrage.

Meeting of the Ramabai Circle and of the Toledo Society of Economic Inquiry—Other Announcements.

The Mesdames Eck entertained the Ramabai Circle yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Louise Eck presiding, Mrs. Cornelia Shaw secretary. A letter from Mrs. Granger, secretary of the Ramabai Circles of the United States, was read, and several letters from Pundita Ramabai. The Sharada Sedema, or school for child-widows, now contains 28 pupils, happy to have escaped the horrors of their homes. They are bright, studious and industrious. Descriptions were given of the East Indian Christmas; also of the new home of Pundita Ramabai, recently purchased, where the school is now located.

An article on "British government of India" was read, the substance of which was that, garrisoned by few Britons and governed by fewer, it not only retains its Asiatic complexion, but it impresses its character, to a large extent, upon its conquerors. The British in India have themselves ceased to be British in many respects, and the Indian empire is British only in flag, fame and name.

The next meeting of the circle will be with Mrs. Chas. Peck, Buffalo street.

Mrs. Richard Eck, Mrs. W. L. Thurstin and Mrs. Frances Sumner were appointed a committee to represent the Ramabai Circle at the Law Kindergarten meeting Wednesday afternoon, the 24th, to discuss the building of a woman's club house in Toledo.

The Toledo Society of Economic Inquiry met in the Steadman Business college last evening, Rev. Dr. H. M. Bacon presiding. The evening was devoted to a discussion upon Gov. Ashley's proposed amendment to the constitution. Election of United States senators and of the president by direct vote of the people were changes acceptable to all who took part in the discussion, but the suggested methods for getting away from "the machine and party domination" were not, by those taking part in the discussion, deemed likely to so result. At the next meeting of this club, Wednesday evening, March 16, Mr. A. E. Macomber will give a paper on "The Growth of Corporations." The April meeting, last for this season, will be for the annual election of officers.

Will Toledo Have a Woman's Club House?

All women's clubs and societies are urged to send representative committees to the meeting called for next Wednesday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at the Law kindergarten rooms. The meeting is for an informal talk upon the building this summer, by women, of a club house in the city. Plans for such a building will be submitted, with cost of construction, and other business details. Should the club house be erected it will not be for the use of women's clubs and societies exclusively, but a place for literary gatherings of all sorts, lectures, musicales, etc. The need of such a building in Toledo has long been felt, and of course if our Toledo ladies take hold of the undertaking, one will be built. The committees at this meeting will not commit the societies represented to any action, but will be able to intelligently report upon the project, leaving the societies to indorse the plan, and go into the movement, or not, as they may determine after hearing these reports.

Announcements.

The Theosophical Reading society meets this evening with Mr. and Mrs. John M. Wheeler, 222 Seventeenth street.

Miss Mary Law gives another kindergarten talk at her school-room to-morrow afternoon, on "Imagination." Mothers and teachers are cordially invited to attend.

The Political Equality club will meet on Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, with Mrs. R. L. Segur, 916 Broadway. There will be a parliamentary drill on "Dependent Motions," and other interesting exercises.

Mrs. Frances J. Barnes, national president of the Ys, will reach Toledo the latter part of next week, and will be tendered a reception at the Trinity Guild rooms, on the afternoon of Saturday, the 27th, from 3 to 6 o'clock. Strictly invitational.

IMPORTANT IN SPRING.

Advice That People Should Take.

In the Spring everybody begins to think of taking a Spring medicine. Not only is this a very common practice, but a very necessary and healthful one. It is a fact which physicians acknowledge, and the people recognize generally, that a Spring tonic taken during the months of March, April and May is absolutely necessary.

In the Spring there are great and important changes going on in the body. Perfect health cannot be maintained when the nerves are weak, the system clogged and the organs sluggish. There will be a weak, tired, languid and nervous condition, with sleepless and restless nights, a tired waking in the morning, no appetite for breakfast, a bad taste in the mouth, malaria, dull head, biliousness, constipation and a general dispirited feeling.

For such cases as these be sure and use Dr. Greene's Nervura, the great nerve, brain and blood invigorator. It is pronounced by everybody, doctors as well as the people, to be the best Spring medicine in existence, and has taken rank as the greatest and most important medical discovery of modern times. Under the use of this wonderful remedy, the weak, tired and nervous feeling disappears; the nerves become strong and steady; the sleep natural and refreshing; the appetite returns, good digestion and regular action of the bowels are established, the kidneys and liver are restored to healthy action, and the vital energies, strength and vigor of the system perfectly built up.

This greatest of all health restorers is purely vegetable and harmless. Druggists sell it, $1.

Dr. Greene, the successful specialist, in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th Street, New York, can be consulted Free, personally or by letter. Call or write him about your case, or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining the disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

In fact the only way of treating any disease is by removing the cause that produces it, and nature will do the rest. This is the manner in which we treat all diseases under our specialties and the secret of our success is in the ability to determine the starting point or cause of your trouble.

Disastrous Fire in New Orleans Last Night.

Business Houses Burn Like Tinder Boxes.

The Losses, as Near as Can be Ascertained—Insurance Placed at About One-Third of the Total.

New Orleans, Feb. 18.—The most disastrous fire of a decade swept over New Orleans last night. More than $2,000,000 worth of property is in ruins.

At 10:30 the alarm was sounded for a fire that was discovered in the immense dry goods house of A. S. Schwartz, on Canal street.

By the time the firemen arrived the flames were bursting through the roof, the Schwartz building was doomed, and all efforts were directed to saving adjoining buildings.

At one time the fire seemed to be under control and confined entirely to the building in which it started, but the flames burst through into the piano house of P. Werlein and then across to Bourbon street.

Runkle's dry goods house was next and was soon a roaring furnace.

Wenger's beer garden and the variety theater adjoining Runkle's, were swept away as if a tinderbox.

The Bourbon street entrance of D. H. Holmes' large dry goods store caught fire and it was also soon in ruins.

Krueger's dry goods house on Canal street, burned next, a total loss.

The losses on stock as near as can be estimated now are as follows: A. S. Schwartz, dry goods, $500,000; P. Werlein, pianos and musical instruments, $80,000 Cleverius, drugs, $8,200; Runkle, dry goods, $75,000; Wenger, beer garden, $32,000; R. D. H. Holmes, dry goods, $25,000; Kuehn, fancy goods, $75,000; Hoffman Bros. $18,000; Leopold Levy, carpets and mattings, $50,000; Kreuger, dry goods, $30,000; B. Fellman, dry goods, $200,000.

These losses do not include buildings except Wenger, nor the many firms occupying the upper floors. Insurance is estimated at one-third.

DUTY ON BINDING TWINE.

The Bill to Take it Off Ready to Report.

The Ways and Means Committee Give Reasons Why the Burden Should be Lifted.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The first of the reports from the ways and means committee on the three tariff bills ordered reported to the house, has been prepared by Representative Bryan, of Nebraska, who drew up the bill.

It is to accompany the bill making binding twine free of duty, and will be presented to the house in a day or two. The present rate of duty on binding twine, the report says, is seven-tenths cent per pound, this rate having been fixed as a compromise after the senate by a vote of 34 to 24 had placed binding twine on the free list. The report adds:

"That great industry, agriculture, which lies at the foundation of all others and upon the welfare of which all the interests of the country so largely depend, has been neglected.

"It has been discriminated against for the benefit of the protected industries; and the injury has been aggravated by the imposition of useless duties upon a large number of agricultural products, under the pretence that such a tariff would increase the price of such products, although the farmer has been assured that a similar tariff on manufactured articles would reduce the price of the goods he buys.

"A large part of the surplus products of the farm must be disposed of in a foreign market and the price of the surplus fixed by free competition regulates the price of the portion sold at home. If the articles necessarily used by the farmer in the harvesting of his crops are made dearer to him than for his competitors, he must bear the burden alone, for there is no one to whom he can transfer it.

"There are in the United States 35 cordage and binding twine factories, 29 of which are owned and controlled by the National Cordage company of New York. The 29 in the trust, if it may be so termed, produce 60 per cent. of the total output. There were produced and consumed in the United States in 1890, 50,000 tons of twine, all but 7,000 tons of which were made from foreign-grown fibres. Seven-tenths of one cent per pound is added to the price.

"As this is probable, this tax cost the farmers of the United States in the year 1890, alone $700,000; and this does not include a large additional sum charged for profits on the increased price by the various dealers through whose hands the product passed. Not one dollar of this large tax reaches the treasury. Surely there can be no excuse for allowing this trust to continue the exaction of this tribute. The raw material from which this twine is made is already on the free list."

KILLED HIS ROOM-MATE.

A Drunken Row Results in Murder.

One Man Chops Another to Pieces with a Hatchet and Pitches Him Down Stairs.

New York, Feb. 18.—John Reardon, a blacksmith, living at No. 222 East One Hundredth street, was found dead at the foot of the stairs at 2 o'clock this morning.

Michael Reardon, his room-mate, was arrested this morning, charged with the murder and held to await the result of the coroner's inquest.

From what could be learned from the neighbors, it appears that the two men had a drunken quarrel, during which Michael had struck John several blows with a hatchet and had then pitched him down stairs. Both men were young blacksmiths. They came from Ireland together several years ago, and have been life-long friends. They were not related.

EVIDENCE OF THE STORM.

Much Wreckage Cast Up by the Waves.

The Loss to the Foreign Shipping During the Past Two Days Will be Enormous.

London, Feb. 18.—The loss to shipping during the storm of the last two days has been very heavy. The extent of it cannot be known as the reports from the coasts, owing to the prostration of the wires, are very meager.

The British bark Cavour, it is believed, has been lost off Round Stone on the Irish coast. Fragments of the wreck have come ashore marked Cavour, Grenock. A box of books marked "S. T. H. Y." have been picked up. A large vessel, timber laden, has drifted ashore, bottom up, near the same point, and fishermen just come in, report that they saw the body of a woman in the water.

CHOCTAWS AND CHICKASAWS

President's Message in Reference to Their Claims.

Congress Should Protect the Red Man From Harrison's Indian Agents.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The president yesterday sent a message to congress calling attention to the Choctaw and Chickasaw claims for the payment of which congress appropriated $2,931,450 in the Indian appropriation bill passed by the last congress.

This amount was to be paid these Indians for their interest in lands lying south of the Canadian river in the Indian territory and now occupied by the Cheyenne and Araphoe Indians.

Three-fourths of the appropriation was to be paid to such person or persons as should be authorized by the laws of the Choctaw nation to receive it, and one-fourth to the Chickasaws, the appropriation to become operative upon the execution of release and conveyance satisfactory in manner and form to the president.

The message says: "If this section had been submitted to me as a separate measure, especially during the early days of the session, I should have disproved it, but as congress was then in its last hours, a disapproval of the general Indian appropriation bill, of which it was a part, would have resulted in consequences so far reaching and disastrous that I felt it my duty to approve the bill. But as a duty was devolved upon me, viz: the acceptance and approval of the conveyances provided for, I have felt bound to look into the whole matter, and in view of the facts which I shall presently mention, to postpone any executive action until these facts could be submitted to congress."

The president then says it comes to his knowledge that the Choctaw legislature had agreed to pay three of that tribe 25 per cent. of any appropriation obtained from congress and that the Chickasaws agreed to pay 10 per cent. of their interest to their agents and attorneys. It also comes to the knowledge of the president that the action of the Choctaw council was corruptly influenced in the matter.

The presodent does not think that congress should so legislate as to give effect to such a contract and he is of the opinion that if this appropriation is to stand provision should be made for protecting these tribes against extortion.

The president does not think that coning with this question piecemeal. It would have been better, he says, if a remnant of title remains in the Choctaws and Chickasaws to the lands in the leased district, to have settled the whole matter at once. The calculations made in arriving at the basis of the appropriation made, no, account being taken of the $800,000 paid by a treaty stipulation for the leased district, seems to the president as not just to the United States. In conclusion the president commends the matter to the attention of congress for such action as may be thought advisable.

ANOTHER RAILROAD DEAL.

Reading Rumored to Have Gobbled the B. & O.

A Trans-Continental Combine with Jay Gould as the Chief Center of Operations.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 18.—The Chronicle-Telegraph publishes the following: Private advices were received by a Pittsburg banker yesterday, which are regarded as thoroughly reliable, to the effect that the Reading company has secured absolute control of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and its numerous branches, and also the New York & New England company.

The terms of the agreement, lease, etc., were finally determined upon by the great financiers who have been negotiating the deal, at a conference in Philadelphia, at which all the necessary papers were signed by the contracting parties.

It is the opinion of the local financiers that the next announcement will be that it has a trans-continental line to the Pacific. This latter feature is all the more probable inasmuch as Jay Gould is said to be the secret spring which has put in motion this movement to solidify the great roads of the country.

ON HER DEATHBED.

Archduchess Marie's Days Are Numbered.

The Announcement of Dissolution is Expected at Any Hour by the People of Austria.

Vienna, Feb. 18.—The Archduchess Marie Valerie, daughter of the Emperor of Austria and wife of the Archduke Francis Salvator, of Austria and Tuscany, is dangerously ill with pneumonia.

The archduchess, on January 27 last, gave birth, prematurely, to a daughter, and has been in a very weak state since. Her condition to-day is so precarious that nobody would be astonished if her death was announced within the next 24 hours.

The archduchess Marie Valerie Mathilde Amelie was born at Ofen on April 22, 1868, and was married July 31, 1890, to the Archduke Francis Salvator.

The archduchess is the third child and second daughter of the Emperor of Austria. She is therefore a sister of the unfortunate crown prince Rudolph, of Austria, whose suicide January 30, 1889, caused such a sensation throughout Europe.

In the event of the death of the archduchess, the archduchess Gizle, wife of Prince Leopold, of Bavaria, to whom she was married on April 20, 1873, would be the only surviving child of the emperor. She was born at Luxemburg on July 12, 1856.

The heir to the Austrian throne, by the death of Prince Rudolph, is the archduke Francis Ferdinand, of Austria, son of Archduke Charles Louis, brother of the emperor, by his second marriage with the Princess Marie Annonciata, daughter of Ferdinand II., king of the Two Sicilies. He was born at Gratz in 1863, and is a major in the Fourth dragoon regiment. Some years ago he inherited the large fortune of his relative, the duke of Modena, and in so doing took the name of Este. On February 1, 1889, he renounced the fortune and name in favor of his brother, Archduke Otho. Archduke Francis Ferdinand is not married, and has never played any great part in Austrian society.

GOOD COFFEE.

The English Do Not Know How to Prepare This Decoction.

All coffee-drinking races—that is to say, all the Latin and some of the Teutonic people—understand very well that the infusion or decoction of coffee is not a fluid like tea, to be imbibed in copious draughts. A weak infusion of coffee is a comparatively tasteless and to many palates an almoost nauseous beverage; the pulverized berry loses all its aroma and delicacy when dissipated in an ocean of boiling water. The only way to prepare it for consumption in large draughts that shall be agreeable as well as refreshing to the drinker is to brew a small quantity of strong coffee, and add to the decoction an ample amount of hot milk.

The result of this combination is what we all drink when abroad with our "first breakfast," and justly pronounce to be excellent. In England, as a rule, we comply with none of the conditions essential to the production of the delicious blend known in France as the "cafe-au-lait," and in Germany as "weiss-kaffee." Disregarding the wholesome example set to us by all the skilled coffeemakers of continental Christendom, we insist upon being supplied upon supplied every morning with a weak aqueous infusion of coffee, which we swallow by the half pint, having aggravated its intrinsic mawkishness by dosing it liberally with cold milk.

This is the liquid we drink submissively, day after day, in our own homes, and are accustomed to accept without a murmur when it is served to us, by no means inexpensively, at the vast majority of British hotels, boarding houses and seaside lodgings. Considered as a beverage, it is an apt illustration of "the way not to do it," which is one of our most cherished national institutions, and was smartly signalized by an American satirist some years ago as "so English, you know." When our medical contemporary says that "so long as the English coffee-drinker persists in treating coffee as if it were tea he will always find that he gets something unpleasing to his palate," it is clearly in the right, although his assumed persistence in that regard is scarcely reconcilable with the dogma previously laid down, to wit, that "we all know how to make good coffee" in this country.

AT THE ZOO.

A recent arrival at the Zoo, which is creating something of a furore, is the horned screamer, from South America. This curious bird has a pair of spurs three and a half inches long, and also a small pair of spurs on the "elbows" of the wings. These are for protection against snakes and other foes with which it has to contend in its native wilds. But now there is a mourning at the Zoo over the sudden demise of a pet cat, at the hands, or more properly speaking, the spurs, of the new arrival. The cat has been on the best of terms with all the inmates of the garden, and it came and went at will. The other day it attempted to make friends with the screamer, but the South American arrival, taking the cat for a natural enemy, ran its spurs through its neck, and now poor puss is no more.—Philadelphia Record.

A HANDSOME RUSSIAN BANDIT.

The famous Russian woman bandit, who has for the last ten years been the terror of Servia, has been captured in a cave on the Roumanian frontier, where she was nursing her sick lover. Young, handsome and a perfect markswoman, she went about in man's dress, with her belt full of weapons and her rifle slung on her saddle, at the head of a band of d— mitted her robberies. Her people warned her that she was in danger of capture, but she refused to abandon her lover, and only surrendered after she had killed two gendarmes.

Train will leave Toledo at 10:20 a. m.; returning, special train will leave Ann Arbor at 7:30 p. m., or passengers can return on regular train leaving there at 8.40 p. m. ### WHAT THE PESKY THINGS ARE.

Bacteria are simply microscopic plants, the smallest form of vegetable life. In some instances they are so small that it would be necessary to place 15,000 of them end to end in order to make a row an inch in length. They are of widely different forms, some round, some oval, some flat or rod-shaped, while still another class are the exact counterparts of small corkscrews. In all cases they are so minute that one needs a powerful microscope in order to study them, and in no case can they be perceived simply with the naked eye. When countless millions are grouped together they may probably be seen, but in this case they may be said to resemble an approaching army, of which we are totally unable to distinguish a single soldier.

ENGLISH IGNORANCE OF AMERICA.

"Did you find out the nationality of the stranger who joined our party yesterday?" asked one traveler of another in Egypt.

"Yes, I discovered he was an Englishman."

"How did you discover it?"

"I asked him if he knew what part of the United States Kansas was in and he said that it was in Buffalo. Nobody but an Englishman could be so ignorant of the geography of the United States."—New York Press.

Damp Dusters.

Some would pin their faith, not without reason, to the damp duster rather than the dry one, but this will not suffice in itself, and, moreover, every kind of furniture does not bear such treatment. Where possible, of course, it is of the two the more effectual plan. Above all, however, it is needful to remember that the object aimed at is not displacement of dust only, but its removal, and for this purpose a combination of thorough daily ventilation by open doors and windows, with careful sweeping, followed by at least displacement of any dust still remaining with the cloth, is the only method alike feasible and effective.—Contributed.

PROMPT PUNISHMENT.

Connecticut is After Child Stealers but Needs Better Laws.

"Good for Connecticut!" must everyone feel prompted to say when reading of the prompt starting of the Long Ridge kidnapers toward state prison. Two of them are held in $5,000 bail for trial within a few hours of their capture. Another is held for a further hearing because the evidence is not so conclusive. This is one of the crimes which demand sharp remedies and prompt application thereof. Yet it is to be regretted that the law in Connecticut is utterly inadequate to provide the former. The maximum term of imprisonment is too short. For simple kidnaping it is but three years. For abducting a small child and forcibly detaining it a penalty of five years may be imposed. In the state of New York a kidnaper can be sentenced to fifteen years. It is not too much.

If the Connecticut legislature now in session ever should get into a deliberative state of mind, here is good ground for law making. It could make itself immensely popular with the united mothers of the state if child stealing were made as serious a crime there as it is elsewhere.

WILLIAM COBBETT'S GRAMMAR.

It has been said of Cobbett that he wrote an English grammar which was "as entertaining as a novel." And this is nothing more than the literal truth. In fact, many novels are harder to read than Cobbett's grammar. The full title of the book is: "A grammar of the English language, in a series of letters; intended for the use of schools and of young persons in general, but more especially for the use of soldiers, sailors, apprentices and plowboys. By William Cobbett. To which are added six lessons, intended to prevent statesmen from using false grammar, and from writing in an awkward manner." From its sarcastic title page to the end of the 230 pages, of which it is composed, every sentence in the book tingles and vibrates with the strong personality of the writer. But the purpose with which the book was written is never lost sight of. It is an orderly, simple and humorous treatise, displaying strong common sense and sound judgment.—Temple Bar.
